CALLS GENERALS TO CONFERENCE

General Chiang Kai-shek, the Chinese military chief and virtual dictator, summoned his Military Council on the night of May 30, immediately following the tightening of the North China crisis after the bombing of a Japanese troop train.

GROWING TENSION IN NORTH

CHINESE CHALLENGE TO JAPAN?

ARMY CHIEFS CONFER

Peiping, June 1.

Tension in North China, as a result of the railway bombing on May 30, has been increased by the attitude of certain high Chinese officers of the autonomous region of East Hopei, who have refused to accede to the Japanese demand for the resignation of the Mayor of Tientsin, Mr. Hsiao Chen-yung.

Mayor Hsiao, it appears, was asked to resign before the bombing incident.

Officers are urging Mayor Hsiao, who is at present in Peiping, to go to Tientsin and resume his post immediately, pledging him their support in all eventualities.

Such action would be tantamount to a challenge to the Japanese, who as a counter-move would probably press for the withdrawal of General Sung Chieh-yuan's Twenty-Ninth Army to the south. General Sung is chairman of the Hopei-Charhar Political Council.—Reuter.

Reviving Dog-Racing In Macao

ENTHUSIASM IS SHOWN

(Our Own Correspondent)

Macao, May 31.

Synchronizing with the national holiday, the Canidrome was alive with activity from nine o'clock on Thursday evening when the enterprising persons who have been devoting untiring work to revive dog-racing in Macao on a better scale than formerly, announced to the teeming thousands that the track was recommencing to function.

There are over 200 dogs and the directors are planning to stage eleven races every Saturday, and Sunday and eight every Wednesday. Five dogs are to run in the hurdle, six in the flat, and seven in the handicap events. The stakes will be $2 for place, $2 for winners, and 40 cents for pari-mutuel.

An amusement park is combined with dog-racing in the Canidrome enclosure. Fantan and roulette are other forms of gaming while the side shows will include shooting galleries, quolls, lotto, and bagatelle. Open air dancing and roller skating and a Chinese theatre will also invite the public.

H.K. FIRM TO TIE UP 7 SHIPS

SMUGGLING RUINING COAST TRADE

MANY OFFICERS WILL SUFFER

Seven China Navigation Company ships well-known on the Hongkong-North China service are to be immediately laid up.

They are the Luchow, Liangchow, Yingchow, Kangchow, Chekiang, Chengtu and Chungking.

For some time past they have been employed on the C.N.C. service between Canton, Hongkong, Swatow, Shanghai and Tientsin.

The depressed state of the China Coast freightage service is said to be the official reason for the company's decision to withdraw the ships from service.

But a Telegraph Special Representative understands from a reliable source that the underlying reason is the gigantic smuggling ramp in existence in North China.

It is understood that the sequel to the withdrawal of the seven ships will be a corresponding retrenchment of the British sea-going staff of the company.

It is feared that other shipping companies may shortly be forced to follow the example set by the China Navigation Company.

Nude Bathing At Midnight

MOTORISTS WATCH DARING DIVERS

Silhouetted against a night sky, the pale forms of nude bathers startled motorists along the Castle Peak Road late Saturday night.

Young men sported in the water off one of the numerous beaches at midnight or later, and drew the attention of at least one carload of people returning from an outing in the same vicinity.

Several of them dived repeatedly off a small float, unaware of any audience, feeling perfectly safe from observation at the distance they were from the highway and any possible visitors to the beach. They may be interested to know, the motorists feel, that although they could not be recognised they were easily seen from the road.

MORE TRAMS IN SERVICE

ALONG CHEAPER ROUTES

In connection with the reduction in tram fares, which commenced to-day, it is understood that about 20 more trams were put into service on the route between Kennedy Town and Whitty Street and Causeway Bay.

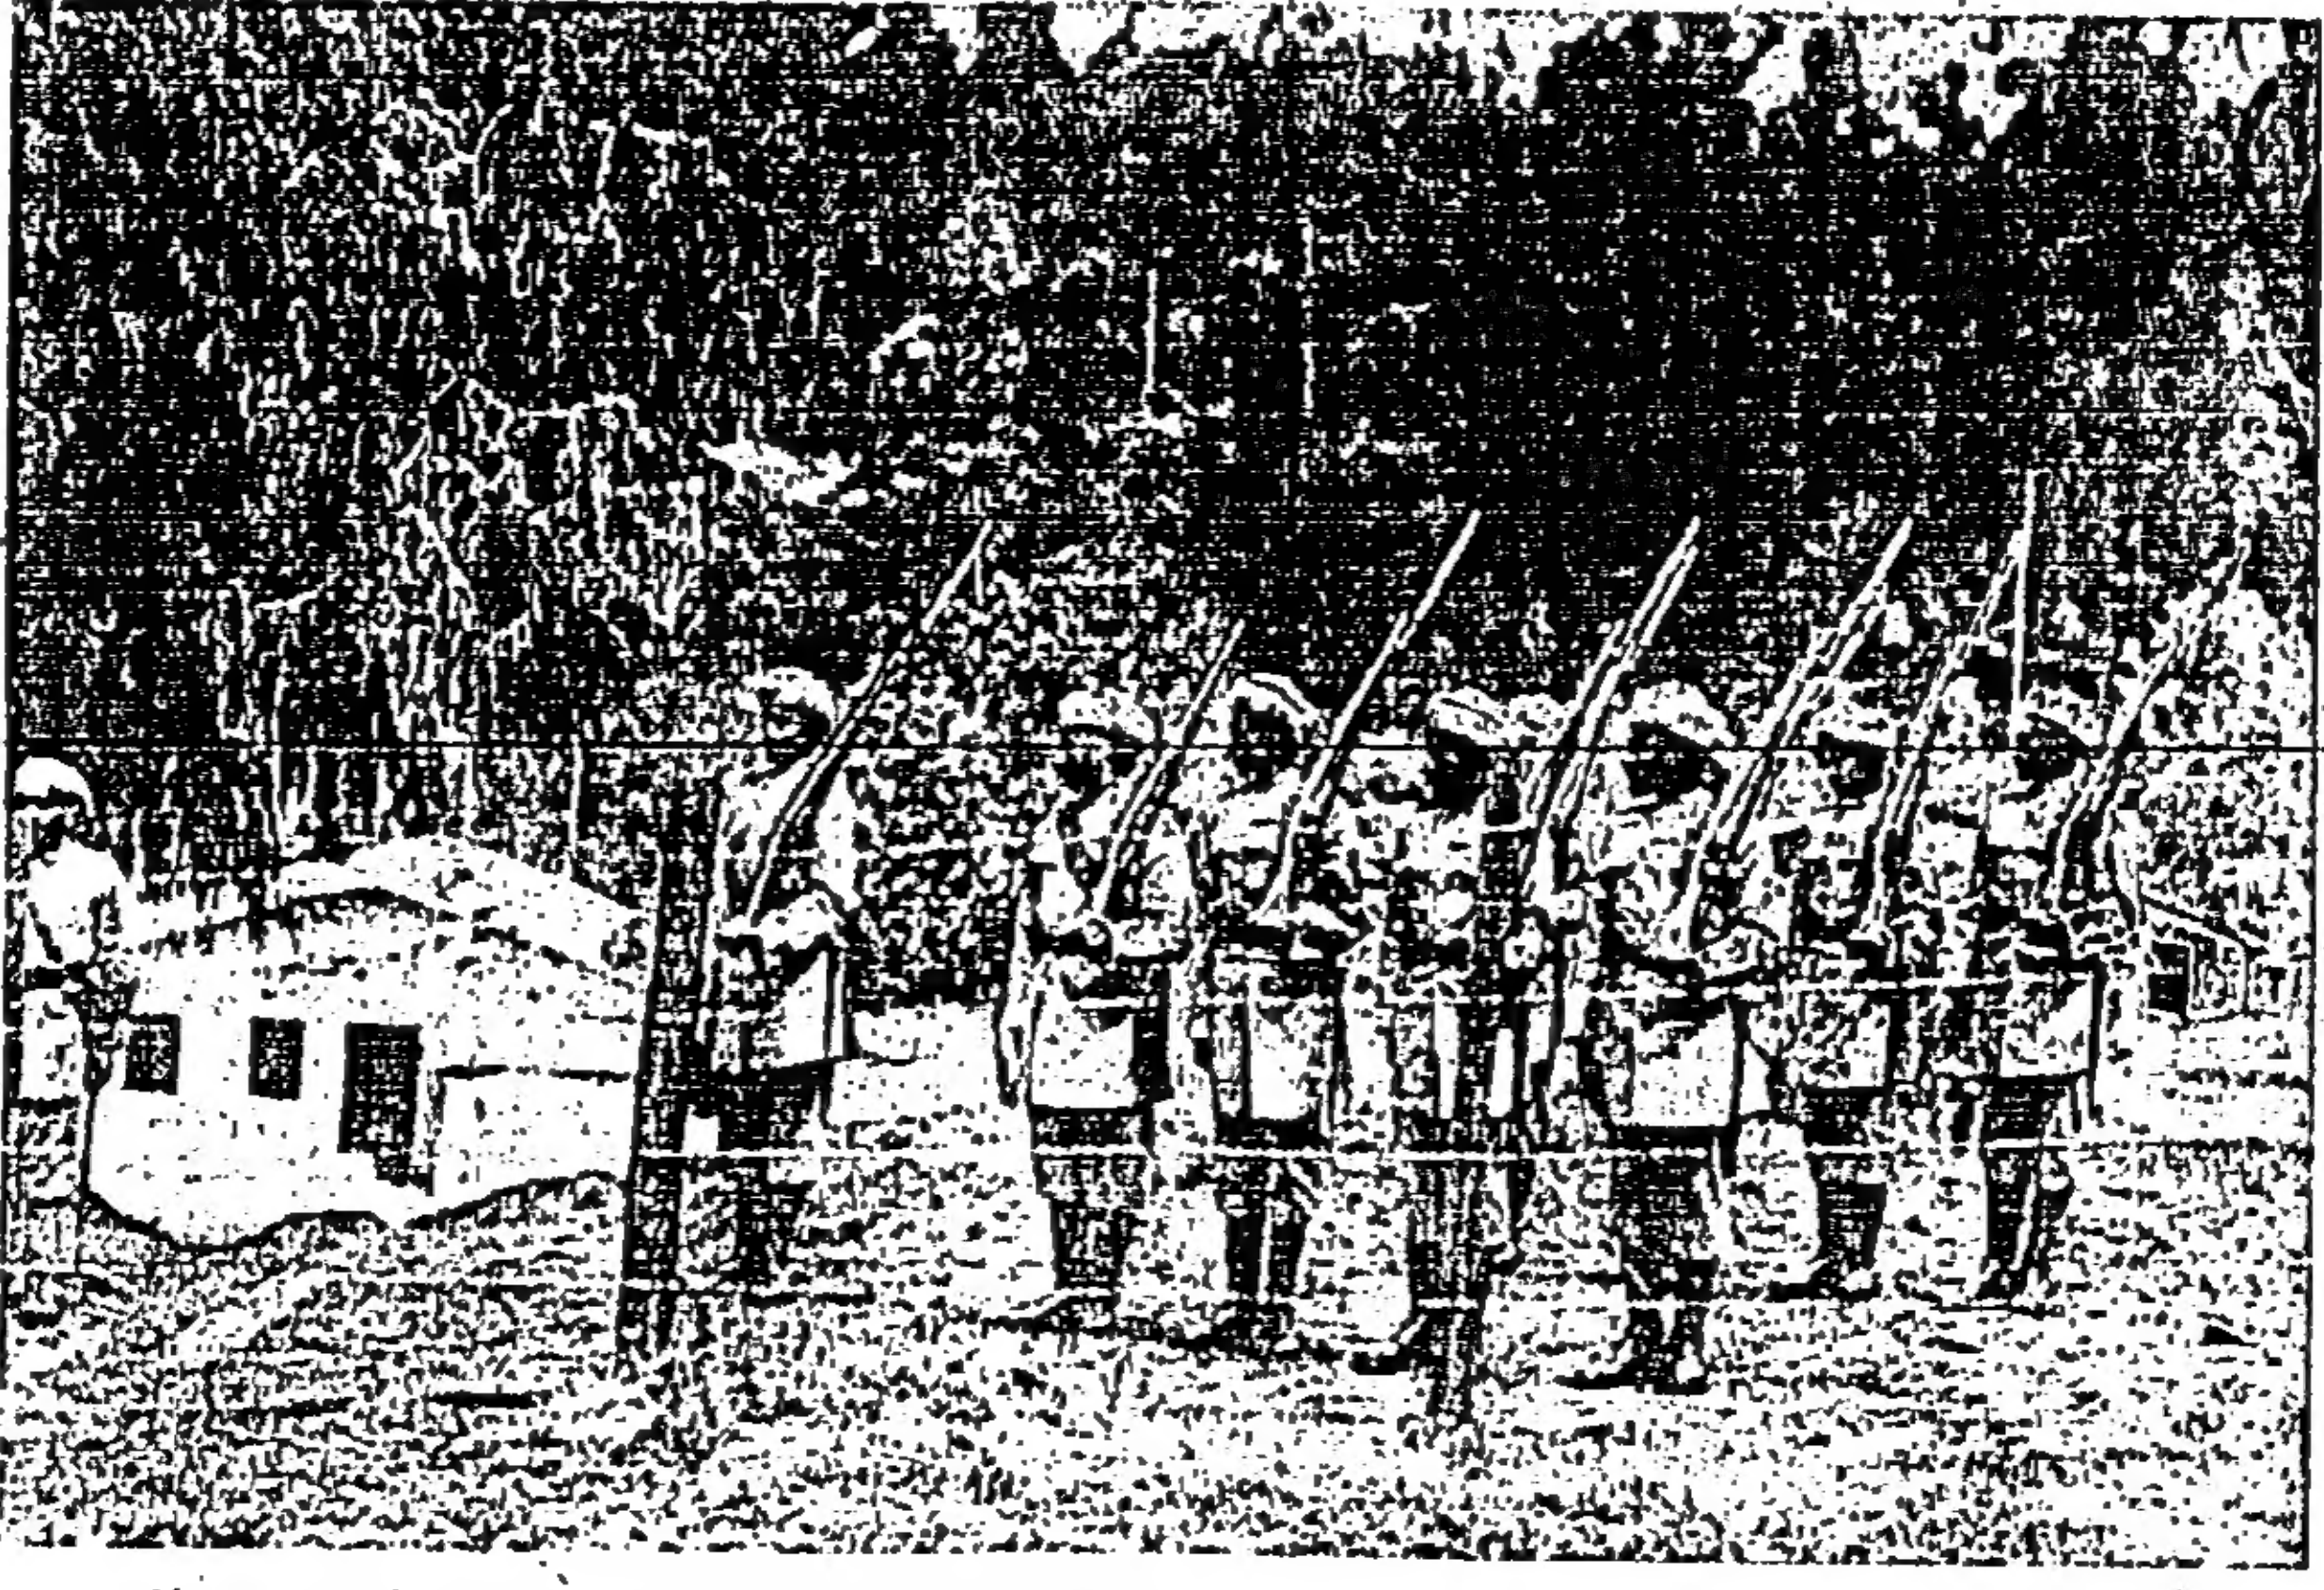

The number for the Shaikwan route, the fare for which was not reduced, remains the same.

INDIAN TROOPS WHOSE GALLANTRY SAVED MANY LIVES

Above are pictured some of the handful of Sikh soldiers, mounting guard in the grounds of the British Legation at Addis Ababa. These men through their conspicuous courage during the rioting which followed the flight of the Emperor from Addis Ababa, saved scores of lives, among those rescued being the American Minister and his staff. Later, these same men proudly refused to observe the request of Italian officers that they use the Fascist salute. They are still at Addis Ababa.

"STAY IN" STRIKE SETTLED

FRENCH WORKERS WIN FIGHT

FULL TERMS UNKNOWN

Paris, May 31.

Virtual agreement has been reached in the grave French metal works strikes.

Of the 70,000 "stay in" strikers only 8,000 now remain on guard in the factories affected to-night.

Trade-unionists claim a victory, though the terms of the settlement have not yet been worked out. They provide recognition of the trade unionists' demand for increased wages and an annual holiday with pay, it is believed.—Reuter.

ABANDON HINDU RELIGION

UNTOUCHABLES SEEK EMANCIPATION

Bombay, May 31.

A conference of the depressed classes to-day passed a resolution that only through a change in religion had the Untouchables a way to emancipation.

The delegates affirmed their readiness to change their religion and as a first step decided to cease worshipping the Hindu deities and observing the Hindu festivals.

The conference is one of the largest in recent times and is notable for the prominent participation of women.—Reuter.

50,000 PERSONS MARK POPE'S BIRTHDAY

Despite heavy rain, 50,000 persons, including 10,000 pilgrims representing many nations, assembled in St. Peter's Square to-day to celebrate the seventy-ninth birthday of His Holiness Pope Pius XI.

A brilliant Papal procession wound its way to the Cathedral, and marched up the nave while Benedictine monks and the choir of the Sistine Chapel sang a Gregorian chant. All religious orders and the different categories in the Papal Court were represented by Cardinals, Bishops and Monsignori, attired in rich robes, which lent colour to the scene within the Cathedral. The Cathedral was crowded. At the conclusion of the Pontifical Mass, the Pope, wearing a red mantle, was borne in a Gestatorial chair to the High Altar from where he gave his blessing to the people. Thereafter, His Holiness was carried to the Vatican, amid shouts of "Viva Il Papa" from the congregation and the crowd which lined the route.—Reuter Special.

ABANDON RECORD ATTEMPT

QUEEN MARY HELD UP BY FOG

STILL MAKING FAST TIME

London, May 31.

The Queen Mary's hope of securing the blue riband of the Atlantic this trip appears to have been abandoned definitely, according to Reuter's special correspondent aboard the vessel.

The Queen Mary's position at noon to-day was 2,517 miles from Cherbourg. She covered this distance at an average speed of 29.15 knots per hour, in spite of delay owing to fog.

The liner is expected to arrive in quarantine at 10 a.m. New York time to-morrow.—Reuter.

678 MILES IN FOG

Aboard the Queen Mary, May 31.

The giant Cunard-White Star's liner, Queen Mary, made a 678 mile run on the third day of her Atlantic crossing, in spite of fog.—Reuter.

"BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME"

Paris, May 31.

"Better luck next time," sportingly comments the Frenchman in the street on learning that fog foiled the Queen Mary's chance of beating the Normandie's trans-Atlantic record.—Reuter Special.

STILL HOPE?

London, June 1.

Reuter's correspondent aboard the Queen Mary says the liner has worked up a surprising burst of speed and expects to arrive at New York two hours ahead of schedule, despite the delay caused by fog.—Reuter.

YANKEES DRAWING AHEAD

CARDS ALSO GAIN STRENGTH

CLOSE GAMES EVERYWHERE

New York, May 31.

The New York Yankees continued to forge ahead in the American League. They beat Boston Red Sox in twelve innings, five to four, when Gehrig and Glenn hit timely homers. Boston hit ten times and New York nine. Each had one error.

Washington beat Philadelphia six to four. Kuehl hitting a home run. The Athletics had ten hits and the Senators eight, and each had three errors.

St. Louis Browns won a game marked by sensational hitting, nosing out the last year's champions, Detroit Tigers, eleven to ten. Coleman and Clift homered for the Browns. Detroit got twelve hits and St. Louis fifteen. Detroit had an error.

Cleveland Indians beat the White Sox at Chicago seven to five. Halo hitting a homer for the winners. The Indians had thirteen hits and one error. Chicago hit nine.

ST. LOUIS WINS

St. Louis still kept a precarious hold on the National League leadership by beating the Cincinnati Reds, eight to seven, in twelve innings. Each hit nineteen times, while the Reds had two and the Cards one error.

Meanwhile New York fell farther away from the leaders when the Brooklyn Dodgers won by the odd run in the eleventh inning on the thirteenth hit. Phillies hit ten. The winners had three errors. E. Moore and Berger made up for them by hitting home runs.

Despite two homers by Suhr and Brubaker, Pittsburgh was nosed out by Chicago's Cubs, eight to seven. Demaree hit a homer for the Cubs. The Josses had seventeen hits and four errors. Cubs hit thirteen and errored once.—Reuter.

AUSTRALIA WINS THE DOUBLES

ANOTHER TRIUMPH FOR QUIST

THRILLING FIVE SET MATCH

Germantown, Pa., May 31.

Australia has taken a vital, and possibly match-winning lead, in the Davis Cup tie against the United States. To-day the Wimbledon championship combination, Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist, defeated Gene Mako and Donald Budge in the doubles encounter by three sets to two, after losing the first two sets. The scores, says a Reuter message were, 4-6, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

The invaders therefore lead by two matches to one and it appears almost certain that they will secure one of the two remaining singles to clinch the tie.

Nevertheless the match is, by no means over. It is worth recalling, that the last time Australia and America met in the Davis Cup the Australians actually led by two matches to love only to meet with such brilliant opposition in the next three rubbers as to lose them—and the encounter.

NOT UNEXPECTED

To-day's result was by no means unexpected. If anything it was generally acknowledged that the Australians, in view of their fine record, started the match with a slight edge. Although Mako and Budge are national title holders and have three beaten Allison and Van Ryn, former U.S. doubles combination, within the space of twelve months, this was their first big test in an international tennis match.

They made a magnificent effort to justify their selection. According to Reuter the Australians were full of spirit in the first two sets and were unable to cope with the ferocious smashing of the Americans.

But they steadied themselves in the third set, and by means of accurate baseline driving broke down the American attack. No matter how the final result of this tie goes, Adrian Quist will be numbered as the outstanding performer. Already he has more than justified his selection as a singles and doubles player. It was a bold stroke on the part of Clifford Sproule, to include Quist in both encounters, but it has been entirely justified by the success of the young Australian, who not only ably assisted Crawford in winning the doubles, but on Saturday started the crowd with a clear-cut victory over Winner Allison.

Allison will need to make a tremendous improvement if he is to beat Crawford, and Quist is in such excellent fettle that he is perfectly capable of overcoming Budge, especially as the red-headed Californian has now played two hard-fought five-set matches on successive days.

FURTHER PALESTINE FIGHTING

TWO ARABS KILLED AT JAFFA

APPEAL MADE TO MAYORS

Jerusalem, May 31.

The Arab mayors of Jaffa, Nabulus, Ramleh, Lydda, and Hebron, in conference at Ramallah, to-day decided to discontinue their cities' administration of services, including water supply, lighting and scavenging.

A number of Arab mayors yesterday met Sir Arthur Wauchope, High Commissioner of Palestine, who is presumed to have urged them to use their influence to terminate the Arab strike, which has started the fire of revolt throughout Palestine.

Two Arabs are known to have been killed at Jaffa during the last few hours. Police and troops used a machine gun to quiet snipers and bomb-throwers, and the two men were killed in this action.—Reuter.

Blum's Pledge To Nation

WILL WORK WITHIN CONSTITUTION

Paris, May 31.

The Socialist Party Congress gave a frantic and triumphant reception to M. Leon Blum, its leader, when he solemnly undertook to implement the programme already outlined.

He was determined to act within the Constitution, he said, and extract from it the greatest order, well-being and security possible, and justice for workers. They had achieved a victory for Socialism, but the new Government would not be a Kerensky Government, as reactionaries affirmed.

Fascism was watching out for its chance to destroy the workers' organisations and they must still expect, perhaps, a flight of capital and hoarding at home, he warned.—Reuter.

Saviour Did Not Speak Hebrew

—SAYS AUTHORITY

Washington, May 24.
Dr. George W. Lamsa, widely known authority on scriptural language, has advanced what he considers to be conclusive proof of the theory that Jesus Christ spoke the Aramaic—instead of the Hebrew—tongue.
The theory that Aramaic was the language generally spoken in Galilee in the time of Christ was based by Dr. Lamsa on:
1. His translation—the first known—of an inscription, found last year on a pillar in the ruins of a synagogue in Capernaum.
2. General acceptance by experts that Christ preached his first sermon in the Capernaum synagogue.
“I believe that, if Christ were alive to-day,” Dr. Lamsa said, “he would speak in Aramaic, and that I could talk to him.”

UNCHANGED LANGUAGE
The Aramaic language, the expert said, has come down practically unchanged from its original as spoken by 22,000 Assyrians who were isolated for centuries in Kurdistan.

The inscription was found on a buried block of stone in the synagogue ruins in 1935.

The inscription in its original form was in Aramaic symbols, bearing no resemblance to present day letters and including no vowels. Dr. Lamsa deciphered the inscription into English letters, inserted the proper vowels, and translated as follows:

Dyhir (a memorial) Ltay (as a good) Zebedi (Zebedee) Bar (son) Yihann (of John) Daghyad (who made it) Hadin (of them) Ghamoda (pillar) Li (this) Yihad (he made) Li (for himself) dekhani (as a memorial) Amn (amen).

A fluent translation, Dr. Lamsa said, would be:

TRANSLATION
“As a good memorial to Zebedee son of John, who made this pillar as a memorial for himself, Amen.”

As evidence that the inscription was made at the time of Christ, Dr. Lamsa said:
“Zebedee son of John, who inscribed the synagogue pillar as a memorial to himself, in turn had a son who was named John son of Zebedee. This latter John, I firmly believe, was one of the apostles.”

The Capernaum synagogue was built several hundred years before Christ, and was destroyed by the Romans about 200 A.D.

The stone carried the only inscription known to have been in existence during Christ's time in Galilee. Dr. Lamsa said.—United Press.

Kruger's Bars Of Gold

LIKE SOAP PACKED IN IRON CASES

NEW LIGHT ON BOER WAR MYSTERY

The wide interest displayed for some years in the rumoured “Kruger millions” is recalled by Mr. Napier Devitt, late First Criminal Magistrate at Johannesburg, in “More Memories of a Magistrate”, just published.

When Paul Kruger, President of the Transvaal Republic, fled in 1900 from Pretoria, and halted with his Executive Council in his railway coach at Machadodorp, he was believed to have taken with him a large quantity of minted and unwrought gold from the Republic coffers. The idea was to carry this treasure to Europe, there to utilise it for the purchase of munitions and other purposes.

“Colonel Deneys Reitz (now Minister of Agriculture in the Union) has publicly denied there was any such wealth disposed of,” the author states; “the matter has been controversial for many years.”

“I know nothing of it personally, but that gold went astray between just before the outbreak of the war and the capture of Johannesburg there is little room for doubt. In 1909 I was told by my uncle, the late Sir F. L. Devitt, then a Lloyd's underwriter, that during that period he had lost £1,000 by under-writing the risk of certain gold in transit from the mines to London, which never left the Transvaal.”

Mr. Devitt relates that on a recent visit to Machadodorp, a hamlet in the Eastern Transvaal, he met an old resident who remembered many incidents of the Presidential flight. His father had been a friend of Kruger; they were boys together and trekked together from the Cape.

ROOM OF MEMORIES

The President and his party arrived at Machadodorp by special train early in June, 1900; the village was proclaimed the Seat of Government; and Kruger remained there until about August 25. He then went to Lorenzo Marques, and to Holland by a Dutch man-of-war.

“I asked my informant whether she had seen anything of the gold which the party were said to have taken with them,” Mr. Devitt writes. “Cryptically,” she replied: “I wish I had all the gold that has been in this room.”

“She went on to talk about certain gold she had seen. She told me how one day van Alphen (the Postmaster-General) had taken her to a closed railway truck, which he opened, and showed her much gold in bars. She had no idea of the number, but said they had only been shown her because of her close friendship with the old President, upon whose knee she had oft-times sat.”

Mr. Devitt states that these “missing millions” have been the object of treasure hunts from time to time. His book gives many intimate and illuminating glimpses of South African life, and he makes some valuable observations on the “Poor White” problem.

DRUNK-DETECTOR

Four Cleveland men who became intoxicated to prove the scientific value of a new “drunk-detector” machine were by the Police department they did not drink in vain.

Armed finally with proof to confound the sceptics, Sergeant Arthur Roth had in his desk the results of two tests—one given to four men under the influence of liquor, the other given the same men a day later under apparently normal conditions.

“The tests show definitely,” the sergeant said proudly, “that the machine is a success and that in the future, results of its test will be accepted as evidence by the courts of Cleveland.”

Sergeant Roth announced that three of the men who fell far below average when tested “under the influence” registered 100 per cent. when sober, but that the fourth man, whose case the sergeant said, “is very strange,” suffered 25% loss of vision when sober.—United Press.

FIRE GOD RITUAL FOR DULEEP

Bombay, May 20.

USUAL Oriental splendour was lacking at to-day's wedding of K. S. Duleepshahi—“Duleep” to cricket lovers—and Jayaraj Kumari, the Maharajah of Rajpipla's niece.

“Duleep” and his bride sat before a fire, with priests and bridegroom chanting the sacred verses of the Mantras.

The bride, deeply veiled, sat quietly while the groom propitiates the fire god by throwing rice and ghee (semi-liquid butter) into the flames. Then he will take an oath to be true to his bride.

Both will take seven steps round the fire.

“Duleep” then will place his bride's foot on the Masala grinding stone, symbolising acceptance of hearth and home, and lift the veil from her face.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR PURCHASE OF ST. DUNSTAN'S

BY COUNT AND COUNTESS VON REVENTLOW

Count and Countess Haugwitz von Reventlow are negotiating to buy St. Dunstan's, Regent's Park.

The negotiations are well advanced, but are understood to be conditional upon the permission of the Commissioners of Crown Lands being obtained to rebuild the house. The lease is owned by Lord Rothesmere.

St. Dunstan's is an historic London house which became, during the war, the first headquarters for the treatment of blinded fighting men.

OFFERED TO GOVERNMENT

It was once in the occupation of the Earl of Londesborough, but was purchased by Mr. Otto Kahn, the American banker, who offered it to the British Government free of expense, on the outbreak of war.

St. Dunstan's has been described as a country estate in miniature. It is within five minutes of the heart of the West End, and on the edge of Regent's Park.

Countess Reventlow was formerly Miss Barbara Hutton, the Woolworth heiress. She was first married to the late Prince Alexis Mdivani, and married Count Reventlow at Reno, Nevada, last year.

Passing of Public School “Snobbery”

Sydney, May 24.
“School snobbery” is virtually a thing of the past in England, according to Mr. Frank Fletcher, M.A. Headmaster of Charterhouse for 24 years, who is on a visit here.

“For years I have worked to bring the public and secondary schools together,” he said. “Such success has rewarded my efforts and those working on similar lines that the ‘die-hards’ of the old school have become practically nonexistent.”

“No discrimination is now made in English Universities between pupils from the greater public schools, secondary and government-maintained schools, and a general public school spirit of great benefit has been the outcome.”—Reuter.

Mr. Fletcher was member of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and President of the Headmasters' Association of England. Before going to Charterhouse he was master at Marlborough College for eight years and before that Assistant Master at Rugby.

QUEEN MARY'S TOP SPEED TO REMAIN SECRET; STRATEGY IS TO AWAIT ATTEMPT ON RECORD; NEW YORK WELCOMES 'CITY AFLOAT' TO-DAY

Liner's Colours Red And Black

Southampton. The Queen Mary, decked in black, red and gold paint, represents beauty as well as speed. As it ploughs the Atlantic in her maiden crossing, the vessel, extending upward to the white of the superstructure and the bridge, will present a striking colour contrast to the other visible portions of the liner. Deep black bands atop the funnels crown the red of the huge smokestacks' bodies.

LETTERS IN GOLD

On the bow of the ship the letters "Queen Mary" appear in gold two and a half feet high and 55 feet long. Within the giant liner variegated colours in passenger cabins and public rooms have been applied to impart an atmosphere of comfort, gladness and elaborate splendour have been avoided. The objective of both the painting and decorative motifs for the interior has been to produce an effect of up-to-the-minute modernity combined with aesthetic beauty.

A colour scheme of blue and silver lends appropriateness to the opulent swimming pools. White predominates in the kitchens and pantries, where liberal use of stainless steel and nickel alloys has been made wherever practicable.

MAP TRACES PROGRESS

Some 30 artists were engaged in the task of decorating the ship's interior. They achieved striking results. For example, on a wall of the main dining room a large map ever constructed in a ship—can be seen a huge decorative map with a moving illuminated model of the Queen Mary herself. As passengers dine they may look at this map, created by the Scottish artist, MacDonald Gill, and see for themselves how they are progressing across the Atlantic steamer lane.

In the bathroom passengers can view an unusual work of art, a series of panels done on glass by the London artist, Jan Jula. Working with an instrument that is not unlike a dentist's drill in etching his designs, it took Jula eight months to complete these panels.—United Press.

Mary R

NEW SIGNATURE FOR QUEEN

London, May 12. Her Majesty Queen Mary, who signed her name "Mary R.I." during the quarter of a century she reigned as mistress of the House of Windsor, has a new signature now.

It is "Mary R" and she used it for the first time recently in signing several so-called Grants of Dignity received by members of the Order of the British Empire.

The full signature was "Mary R—Grand Master" but the "Grand Master" was engraved on the documents. King Edward appointed his mother Grand Master of the Order several weeks ago in succession to himself. He could not hold the office after he became king.—United Press.

FREE HOMES FOR BRIDES

THEY'VE SET SCOTS "KING" A PROBLEM

MR. JOHN SIDNEY CLUNIES-ROSS, the sixty-years-old Scotsman "King" of Cocos Islands in the Indian Ocean, is faced with a big problem following his "free homes for brides" offer.

Saved His Conscience

—BY HALVES

On May 1, halves of fifteen pound notes arrived at the British Treasury.

On May 15 the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that he had received the corresponding fifteen halves.

The scraps of paper, matched, became fifteen pounds—conscience money.

Sender saved twopenny half-penny, besides his conscience. Unmatched halves of banknotes are not currency. He did not have to register the packets, saved fourpence, less three-halfpence for a second stamp.

Queen of Seas Extends 1,018 Feet Compares to Shing Mun Dam.

Salient facts concerning the liner Queen Mary: It is 34 feet longer than the Eiffel Tower is tall. Three modern locomotives could pass abreast through its funnels. If the ship were placed on its stern, it would reach ten times higher than the Peninsula Hotel. The Queen Mary would leave no room for Hongkong bathers to sunbathe on the beach if it went ashore at Repulse Bay. Dimensions—1,004 feet long waterline; 1,018 feet overall; 118 feet wide; 136 feet tall. Scheduled crossing time—Four days from England to America at approximately 30 knots. Engines—Four single reduction geared turbines, generating approximately 200,000 horsepower. Propulsion—Four propellers, each weighing 35 tons. Electricity—628 electric motors capable of developing 13,500 horsepower, supplying current through 325 miles of cable. Communications—Four separate wireless transmitters providing ship-to-shore and intra-ship telephone service. Public rooms—Twenty-five public rooms for a variety of purposes. Passenger capacity—Approximately 2,500. Crew—Approximately 1,000. Master—Capt. Sir Edgar Britten.

H. K. PASSENGERS JOIN QUEEN MARY ON RETURN VOYAGE

THREE well-known Hongkong residents will travel from New York to Southampton on the return maiden voyage of the Queen Mary.

They are Mrs. Bryson, Miss Marion Bryson and Mr. L. D. Skinner.

Miss Bryson is a well-known local Hockey player, and has represented the Colony in interport matches.

Mr. Skinner, who is attached to the Hongkong Telephone Company, is also a well-known local sportsman. He was Hon. Secretary of the Hongkong Badminton Association until his departure on leave.

BEAUTY AND TALENT CAN'T GET JOBS IN HEARTBREAK CITY

By A Woman Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, MAY 24. IF YOU HAVE DREAMS OF "GATECRASHING" HOLLYWOOD, STAY AWAY FROM HERE. I KNOW, BECAUSE I HAVE JUST BEEN THROUGH THE MILL, AND IF IT HAD NOT BEEN FOR PERSONAL FRIENDSHIPS I COULD STILL BE HAMMERING HOPELESSLY AT THE STUDIO GATES.

BEAUTY, TALENT AND EVEN SEX-APPEAL ARE A GLUT ON THE MARKET HERE.

Dozens of "scouts" are employed by every film studio to roam the world in search of real screen attractions. So, if you can do anything—dance, sing, tumble, act or make queer noises—stay where you are and keep doing it. Do it louder and funnier. Thus you will stand a 10 to 1 better chance of crashing Hollywood.

There are hundreds of beautiful girls glad to work in small cages in Hollywood, and crowds of handsome and ambitious boys who are lucky if they can get a job in a garage.

They can sing, dance, act and make funny faces, but they cannot crash into films.

I tried to find out why, and decided to become an "extra." Everybody said that the Central Casting Bureau was the place where "extras" were engaged, receiving hours being between 9 a.m. and noon.

So, with a lift-full of young hopefuls and some not so young but not less hopeful, I arrived in the casting bureau at 9 a.m. Prominent in the crowd was an old-timer with a beautiful Cockney accent whom everybody addressed as Tiny.

"Hi there, Major," said a tall, red-haired woman, barelegged, and with big green earrings dangling to her shoulders.

"Did your wife get that audition?"

"Not yet," came the answer. "She's still hoping."

Still hoping! That is what everybody in Hollywood is doing. A man later I still was to be registered when a woman with a curly-haired daughter approached the office and asked again for an application blank.

"Do you want to register as an 'extra'?" asked the girl behind the desk and the following dialogue took place:

"Yes, I want to do that very much."

"So would a couple of million more, dearie."

"But my daughter is a dancer. She's a professional dancer."

"Well, we've got 13,000 'extras' signed up already, and we won't register any more. We haven't room for any more."

"But isn't there some way my daughter could get in? Everyone tells me to come to Central Casting, and why do they do that if you aren't registering anyone?"

"I don't know, madam. Registrations are closed. Maybe it would help if you got a letter from someone on the inside."

BRITAIN SHOULD RULE THE WAVES AGAIN SOON

By SANDOR S. KLEIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, June 1. When the liner Queen Mary steams into New York harbour to-day on its maiden trans-Atlantic voyage, the world's busiest port will not greet a new speed queen of the seas, because it is believed that no attempt will be made on the record until the ship's engines are "worked in."

Shipping men here are confident, however, that the Queen Mary, crowning achievement of British marine engineering, will eclipse the Atlantic speed records now held by the French liner Normandie on subsequent trips.

The owners, the Cunard-White Star line, have disclaimed any intention of attempting to regain the blue ribbon of Atlantic speed supremacy, which for many years has been held by the liner Mauretania until Germany, Italy and France began building new ships, but the United Press has learned from an authoritative source such an attempt is being made on the second trip.

The Queen Mary is deliberately not going "all out" in the present record attempt. Speed is being maintained at a point where, if British expectations are fulfilled, it will just be below the Normandie's record. The engines' additional power will be reserved for another time.

The 80,773-ton pride of the British mercantile marine left Southampton on its maiden crossing on Wednesday. New York is all ready to welcome the giant liner, surpassed in size only by the Normandie, when it sails into New York harbour this morning.

There will be the usual marine demonstration in the bay and its arrival will be the occasion for public celebrations, banquets, receptions and speeches.

Although the normal stopover of the Queen Mary will be three days, it will remain at its New York pier five days to give the American public ample time to inspect its multifarious splendours, its 12 spacious decks, its luxurious public rooms and its tremendous engines.

The liner's first two passages already are booked, according to the White Star line. Many prominent persons will make the initial crossing.

The Queen Mary represents the latest word in marine science and architecture and has been described as "a city afloat."

BOASTS "DOG HOTEL"

Air-conditioning, a floating gallery of the fine arts, all-electric kitchens, a "dog hotel," elaborate therapeutic baths, unique colour-change lighting features, special movies for children, 50 different kinds of rare woods used in panelling public rooms and state-rooms, telephone communication with the entire civilized world, two interior swimming pools, 21 elevators—these are some of the highspots of the Queen Mary.

The liner is 1,004 feet in length along the water line—a world record, according to the Cunard-White Star company—and 1,018 feet in length over all; 118 feet wide, 136 feet high from keel to the top of the superstructure.

Most modern appliances for safety and navigation have been installed. The huge vessel has two "skins," making it a ship within a ship. The lower part of the hull, running up to 40 feet from the keel, consists of an outer and inner surface. Between these two, there is enough room for a man to walk erect and it is divided into 100 separate and completely watertight compartments.

ONE DECK 750 FEET LONG. There are 12 decks, the promenade deck being 750 feet long, equal to the overall length of the famous Mauretania. The funnels, elliptical in shape, are each larger than either the railway tubes under the Hudson River or the Holland vehicular tunnel between New York and Jersey City. The forward funnel, the largest, measures 30 feet in diameter and about 100 feet in circumference. Three modern locomotives, travelling abreast, easily could pass through one of the funnels.

The steam of the Queen Mary's 27 oil-fed boilers with their 100,000 tubes will generate approximately 200,000 horsepower from the four single reduction geared turbines. The turbines will twirl four manganese bronze quadruple-bladed propellers, each weighing 35 tons.

One of the four turbines can be operated independently, and together are expected to drive the ship even through heavy seas at better than 30 knots.

So much for the mechanical and engineering phases of the vessel. Its accommodations and services are a story in themselves.

THREE CLASSES CARRIED. There are three classes of accommodation for a total of approximately 2,500 passengers—cabin, tourist and third class.

The main restaurant, the main lounge, which serves as a cinema and legitimate theatre, and the tourist class restaurant are air-conditioned. With the single exception of charcoal grills for the preparation of steaks and chops, all cooking and baking is done electrically. Electrically furnished the motive power for "mechanical Molly," an automatic maid-of-all-work that can wash, rinse, polish and sterilize thousands of dishes in an hour, without smashing even the most delicate china.

The kitchens are geared to prepare more than 50,000 meals expected to be served during each voyage.

A "dog hotel," comprising 20 kennels for dogs, is provided on the sports deck. Each kennel has hot and cold running water, steam heat and a ventilation system similar to that installed in the state-rooms. An exercise deck, 80 feet long, is set aside for the exclusive use of the canine travellers.

TWO SWIMMING POOLS. There are two big interior swimming pools, one for the use of cabin passengers and the other for tourists. Adjoining the pools are Turkish and therapeutic baths.

It cost approximately £50,000 to equip the Queen Mary with a full supply of linens, including 500,000 sheets, pillow cases, napkins, table cloths and towels.

Virtually every room in cabin class boasts a private bathroom. Many of the tourist class rooms have private baths.

Each of the three classes has its own motion picture installations. Children in the cabin playroom have their own automatic movie, operated by the mere pressing of a button, which show Mickey Mouse, Popeye the Sailor and other comedies intended for the amusement of the younger generation.

The ship contains 10,000 electric fixtures and 30,000 electric lamps, sufficient to light a town of 100,000 inhabitants.

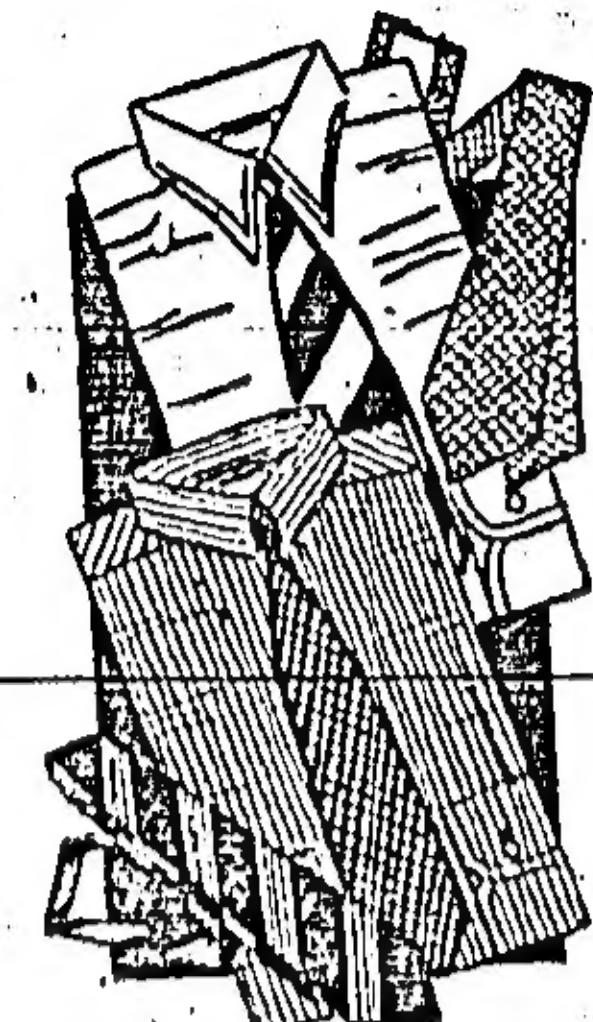

There is a sound-proof studio for concert rehearsals, for practice use by travelling musicians or for broadcasting to the United States or Europe.

Cabin and tourist classes each have their own gymnasiums.

AUSTRIAN INCIDENT

GERMANS BULLIED BY HEIMWEHR MEN

Graz, Austria, May 31. A dispute between Heimwehr men and German spectators of the round Austria air race may have diplomatic consequences. German sightseers at the flying ground approached German competitors for their autographs when Heimwehr men drove them away. They bullied the Germans upon which the latter made a report to the police, who intervened. Several people were slightly injured. The Germans decided to withdraw from the race.—Reuter's Special.

CINEMA NOTES

True friendship that proves itself under a hail of fire and in the face of gay adventure is the theme of the dashingly colourful, and exciting 20th Century Fox picture, "Professional Soldier," which is now showing at the King's and Alhambra Theatres, to present Victor McLaglen and Freda Parfitt in their first co-starring role. With a fascinating Damon Runyon yarn for its basis, the gusty writing of Gene Fowler and Howard Ellis Smith in the script, this grand adventure picture tells the amazing story of a little king and a blustering soldier of fortune who become pals in peril. It all starts out as a carousing adventure with the roguish, scrupulous McLaglen agreeing to kidnap the king of a little European state for a price. He is in the pay of revolutionaries. McLaglen and his assistant, played by Michael Whalen, carry out their part of the bargain, even though they lose their taste for it when they discover that the monarch is a stringing-along. They also carry away Gloria Stuart, who breaks in on them in the middle of crime. In a mountain hideaway, the king and the soldier strike up a fast friendship. McLaglen trains the led-in games in which he soon becomes more proficient than his instructor. He tells him his horrible tales of bloodshed. Everything goes well, even the blossoming romance between Whalen and Miss Stuart, until a royalist plot carries the king back to his palace and McLaglen is left to await death. But the royalists themselves plot to do away with the king. In the thrilling, nerve-racking climax, McLaglen stages a jail break and a one-man war against the king's forces, bringing the story to its happy close. Under the spirited direction of Tay Garnett, the stars give sterling performances that top even the best of their previous spectacular roles. Among the supporting players whose work stands out are George Collier and C. Henry Gordon. "Professional Soldier" was produced under the personal supervision of Darryl F. Zanuck. "Colleen"

Three popular production songs, written by Harry Warren and Al Dubin comprise the musical portion of Warner Bros. new comedy "Colleen," which closes to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Two of the songs are those around which colourful big song and dance productions have been built. These are "You Gotta Know How to Dance," a rhythmic dancing number with a background of a luxurious ocean liner. This is sung by Dick Powell, with the tapping feet of Ruby Keeler. The other is "Millions in the Air," a sentimental fox trot song for the Modiste Shop sequence which is a veritable musical style show of purey girls. Powell sings this while Ruby Keeler gives a lyric recitative. Another song, introduced in the run of the picture story is "Boulevardier from the Bronx," a vocal interchange between Jack Oakie and Joan Blondell. "Colleen" is a smashing musical comedy with an all-star cast. Spectacular dance numbers were staged by Bobby Connelly with music and lyrics by Harry Warren and Al Dubin. Alfred E. Green directed.

"Millions in the Air," the farcical romance which Paramount has turned out as a gentle jibe at prevailing radio amateur programmes, has everything that is needed to make first-class entertainment. From the first to the final song this picture moves swiftly. So many things happen that it is useless for a reviewer to attempt to tell it all. The amateur-hour theme makes it possible for the producers to introduce about a dozen different acts, all suitably fused into the main story, which concerns the romance of a young saxophone player and the daughter of the radio programme's sponsor. Wendy Barrie, the talented British actress, and John Howard, a new and refreshing screen personality, have the romantic leads in "Millions in the Air." George Barbier, unquestionably one of the finest character actors on stage or screen, is the soap-selling sponsor. And there is no end of comedy in the picture, contributed mainly by Willie Howard, Chasen and Benny Baker. Willie Howard is exceptionally well cast as an Italian vegetable peddler with a yearning to sing "Rigoletto" while Chasen brings out the stage's funniest episodes—his one-act or two-act sketches. All in all, romance intermingles with comedy, and above all, a new dancing star—Eleanor Whitney—appears in the picture. Her dance routines are alone worth your time in "Millions in the Air."

"Boulder Dam," a Warner Bros. production heralded as a drama of thrilling action, and based on the story by Alvin D. Tompkins opens to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. The picture is based on the building of the dam project, and the lives of the daredevil workmen who blasted their way through solid rock and scaled the walls hundreds of feet above the river. Death faced these dynamic workers at every turn and many of their deeds of heroism, depicted in this film, will go down in the history of this great undertaking. The picture is crisscrossed with dramatic, daredevil action, heroic deeds and thrilling incidents in addition to its romance. Patricia Ellis who takes the lead opposite Ross Alexander adds colourful touches to the picture by singing two songs specially written for the production by the noted song team of Mort Dixon and Allie Wrubel. Ross Alexander portrays a shirking, disgruntled automobile mechanic, cocky and sure of himself. In a final fight with his boss the latter strikes his head in such a way that it kills him. The mechanic flees, and in his wanderings, gets to the Boulder Dam. There he meets the pretty dance hall singer and is inspired by love to make something of himself. He is recognised by his rival (Lyle Talbot) who gives him twenty-four hours to quit down. An unforeseen and most unusual incident occurs which changes the aspect of the picture and brings it to a smashing climax. Supporting Miss Ellis, Alexander and Talbot in

MARRIAGE LAWS

CHINESE CUSTOMS EXPLAINED

Evidence regarding Chinese law and customs relating to marriage, was given by Mr. Sung Tsing-kam, King Sang of the Tsing Dynasty (Licentiate) before Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy on Saturday, when hearing was continued in the case in which Chau Hoi-pang, of 19, Sharp Street East, was accused of persistent cruelty and neglecting to pay maintenance for his wife, Ng Wing-yee, and children, Chau Ah-bee, aged six months.

There is also an order being sought that the wife should have legal custody of the children; that the defendant pay a weekly sum as the Magistrate, having regard to the means of both the husband and wife, considers reasonable; and that the costs of the application and the summons be paid by the defendant.

Mr. D. S. Curtis appeared for the complainant while Mr. C. A. Sutherland-Russ was for the defence. The case was first heard on April 25 when Mr. Curtis stated that the parties were married on May 13, 1933. In November last year the wife heard that her husband was going about with another woman. The defendant told his wife that he was paying for the University education of the other woman. Since February he had not given the complainant any money and had become very abusive.

On Saturday, Tsai Sum-kwai, married woman, of 31, Wong Chuk Street, deposed that her elder sister was the defendant's first wife who died on December 6, 1934. Witness's elder sister seemed to be rather friendly with the complainant and asked witness to approach complainant to enquire whether she would be the second concubine. Negotiations resulted in the complainant wanting to have the title of an equal wife. Complainant's mother received $1,000 as well as pork and goose among other things. Witness was present at the dinner and saw the complainant serve tea and cakes to her mother-in-law, aunt and witness's brother-in-law. Complainant also served tea and cakes to witness's elder sister who reciprocated complainant's kneeling and bowing. As security for the complainant $500 was also paid.

Chinese Marriage Law

Mr. Sung Tsing-kam, Chinese Vice-Consul for Honolulu from 1905 to 1910, and from 1898 to 1901, legal assistant in the Yiu Ping and Ching Hoi districts, next gave evidence. He testified that he had been Mandarin Interpreter both in the Central Magistracy and the Supreme Court and had given expert evidence on Chinese customs before Mr. Justice Wood in a case in 1920.

Mr. Curtis, interestingly, asked witness if it was a fact that the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, would not hear his (witness's) evidence in a recent case, and witness replied that that was so. "He would not hear me as a legal assistant," witness added. Continuing, witness quoted that according to the old law if a man took a second wife he received 90 blows and a separation was ordered. Chinese law did not recognise an equal wife he stated. Article 985 of the Civil Code, in China laid down that any person who had a spouse cannot contract a second marriage. Witness then referred to the old Book of Rites, and the ceremony of marriage.

The evidence in this case, said witness, was that the complainant married the defendant while the first wife was still living, and, therefore, the complainant could not claim herself to be a wife. She could not be a kit fat or tin fong wife.

Witness explained that a tin fong wife filled the vacancy caused by a kit fat wife.

In witness's opinion, in the present case, the complainant was a concubine under the old law, and under the new law the marriage was bigamous. When a first wife is still alive, said witness, a marriage contract could not be recognised.

"Retrothal Money"

Witness explained that it was the usual custom in Chinese marriages for the bridegroom to send presents and some money to the bride's family. The money was known as "retrothal money" and the amount ranged from $24 (24 taels in old times) to $240 or $300, but never exceeded the latter sum. The money paid for a concubine was known as "personal price" and ranged from $300 to over $1,000.

There was no remedy, said witness, in a case where a woman married a man when she knows he already has a wife.

Cross-examined by Mr. Curtis, witness, shown certain red paper documents, agreed that such documents were not given to a concubine. Witness agreed that the documents included the words "intentionally limited."

Mr. Curtis submitted that after having handed the documents to complainant, the defendant could not deny that she was his kit fat wife in point of fact. She did say herself that she had no knowledge at all of his first wife.

Mr. Russ remarked that the defence rested on two grounds, namely, facts and law, and submitted that the case should be essentially dismissed. This was a case, he remarked, where the wife was cruel to the husband. She had been a thorough shrew and had made her husband "lose face" in public. He could not conceive a more horrible wife. The husband hit her once, and she stated he was guilty of persistent cruelty. The woman was not a kit fat wife and could never be. There was a senior concubine who would be raised first, Mr. Russ concluded.

His Worship reserved his decision, which he will announce on June 8 at 11.30 a.m.

FRANCE'S NEW RULERS

The new French Government, under the leadership of M. Leon Blum, takes over the reins of office to-day. It is a Leftist regime, of distinctly different political complexion from that which it succeeds. The perpetual shifts and changes of French politics are somewhat baffling to the outside observer, for in recent years it has seemed that the more the Government changes, the more it is the same thing. Only a brain of Gallic subtlety could explain or justify some of these changes, or state wherein the difference consisted between one set of Ministers and another. In the recent elections, however, the cat jumped much further to the Left than most political prognosticators thought likely. Socialists of many hues, sheltering under the title of the Popular Front, won a great victory. Whether they will be able to make good use of it and improve the position of their country, domestic and international, remains to be seen. It does not seem that they will be an altogether united family. The gentleman's agreement which contributed to the winning of the elections may not withstand the strain of being in authority. As far as Britain and other Powers are concerned, immediate interest centres in the policy that the new Government may follow at Geneva. There have been suggestions that it will be less ambiguous in supporting the British Government than the Sarraut administration. There is, of course, a marked change in the situation as between Italy and the other League Powers, as a result of the occupation of Ethiopia, but the sanctions issue still remains to be disposed of, and much speculation exists as to the line the Blum Government will follow in this connection when the League Council again meets in about a fortnight's time. On the Rhineland issue, it is stated that M. Blum will notify the League that France will act vigorously to prevent German re-fortification of the former demilitarised zone. The measures in contemplation have not, however, been disclosed. In general, it may be said of French foreign policy that Frenchmen, whatever their party colours, are Frenchmen first and last. It is to be assumed, therefore, that WHAT lies behind the arming of Europe? That a feverish arms race is threatened is, unhappily, only too true.

This vast aggregate expenditure on the most fearful modern weapons of destruction will entail financial and economic sacrifices.

Germany is experiencing great difficulty in purchasing the necessary raw materials from abroad and in maintaining the vast number of workers employed in this non-productive capacity.

It has been stated that during 1935 the Reich spent $1,000,000,000 on arms. Even if this is 100 per cent. overstatement, the sums spent are enormous.

France, clinging to the gold standard, is suffering from the full effects of deflation. The Banque de France has had to borrow heavily from the Bank of England to maintain the exchange.

BRITAIN herself has only just emerged from the trough of a serious industrial depression, and even now has only recovered a little more than half her former export trade. Not one of these countries is paying its external debts in full. Britain and France, in particular, have defaulted on the debts of the last war to the United States of America.

Russia is still struggling to reorganise her industries and to build up new ones, yet is engaged in a colossal armaments programme both in the air and for the increase and strengthening of the army. The smaller states—Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Poland—are still straining their financial resources to increase their fighting forces.

Taxation is very high in all these countries. There is no doubt that the will of the masses of the people in all the states concerned is toward peace; but

NOTES OF THE DAY

A successful experiment in holding a special matrimonial court has led to the advocacy of certain reforms in the system of hearing matrimonial cases. Fifteen months ago a matrimonial court was set up in London, and the widespread interest which the proceedings aroused led to the appointment by the Home Secretary of a Committee of Enquiry in October, 1934. This Committee has now issued a report which contains a number of valuable recommendations. It is strongly urged that matrimonial cases and other matters relating to family life shall be considered by Magistrates at special sessions, the Bench of Magistrates to include a woman Justice. The atmosphere of the court should, moreover, be of a far less formal nature than is the case at criminal hearings. The number of Justices adjudicating in these cases should be limited to three. Admission to the court should be restricted to persons directly concerned. Newspaper reports should be limited—as they are at present in Divorce Court proceedings. These and other recommendations are proposed in the hope of encouraging conciliation between the parties concerned. That they will succeed in many cases there is no doubt. Out of a total of 906 maintenance summonses in Manchester in 1934, more than one-third of the parties failed to appear as they had already composed their difference. In cases adjourned to give an opportunity for conciliation, fully half came to nothing for the same reason. Should conciliation fail, the court probation officer should be called upon for a written "Statement of Allegations," which would serve as a basis for examination of the parties. Further, the Committee recommend an increased recourse by the probation officers to medical assistance, and they propose that all candidates applying for appointments as probation officers should undergo a training particularly suited to modern social requirements.

they will be primarily concerned in future, as they have been in the past, with making their national security stand foursquare to all the winds that may blow. Precisely where that policy will take them in the present troubled condition of Europe remains to be seen.

And So, Europe Arms

By Lord
Strabolgi

they acquiesce in vast preparations for a possible war.

True, Italy has been engaged in what her rulers are pleased to call a colonial war. An intensive propaganda has whipped up some popular enthusiasm in Italy and a few easy victories have helped. Disillusion would follow rapidly if there was any serious setback in the Italian campaign in Africa.

In Germany, an unexampled governmental propaganda machine has been used under high pressure to militarise the thoughts of the German common people. Nevertheless the rulers of Germany always begin and end the fiercest of speeches by proclaiming their devotion to the cause of peace. Indeed, the Germans have been taught to believe that the very armaments and conscription which entail such sacrifices upon them are, first and foremost, a means of insuring a peaceful future.

The reluctance of the masses of the French to engage in military adventures is well known. Frenchmen would fight if their country was actually invaded by a foreign army; but not otherwise. The bulk of the English people would only be induced to engage in any war with the greatest of difficulty. The same holds good with regard to all the European peoples.

WHY, then, this tremendous re-arming?

There are a number of causes. They act and react on each other. The principal cause is fear. Hostility to Communism is part of the creed of the National Socialist Party which rules Germany. This means, in practice, hostility to Russia. The Russians, remembering the early declarations of the National Socialist leaders, notably Hitler and Rosenberg, believe that if the Germans can buy off or intimidate the other European nations they will seek expansion toward the East; which means at the expense of Russia. They believe, further, that it is the German policy to seek for allies in this adventure, and that these allies will probably include Japan and possibly Poland.

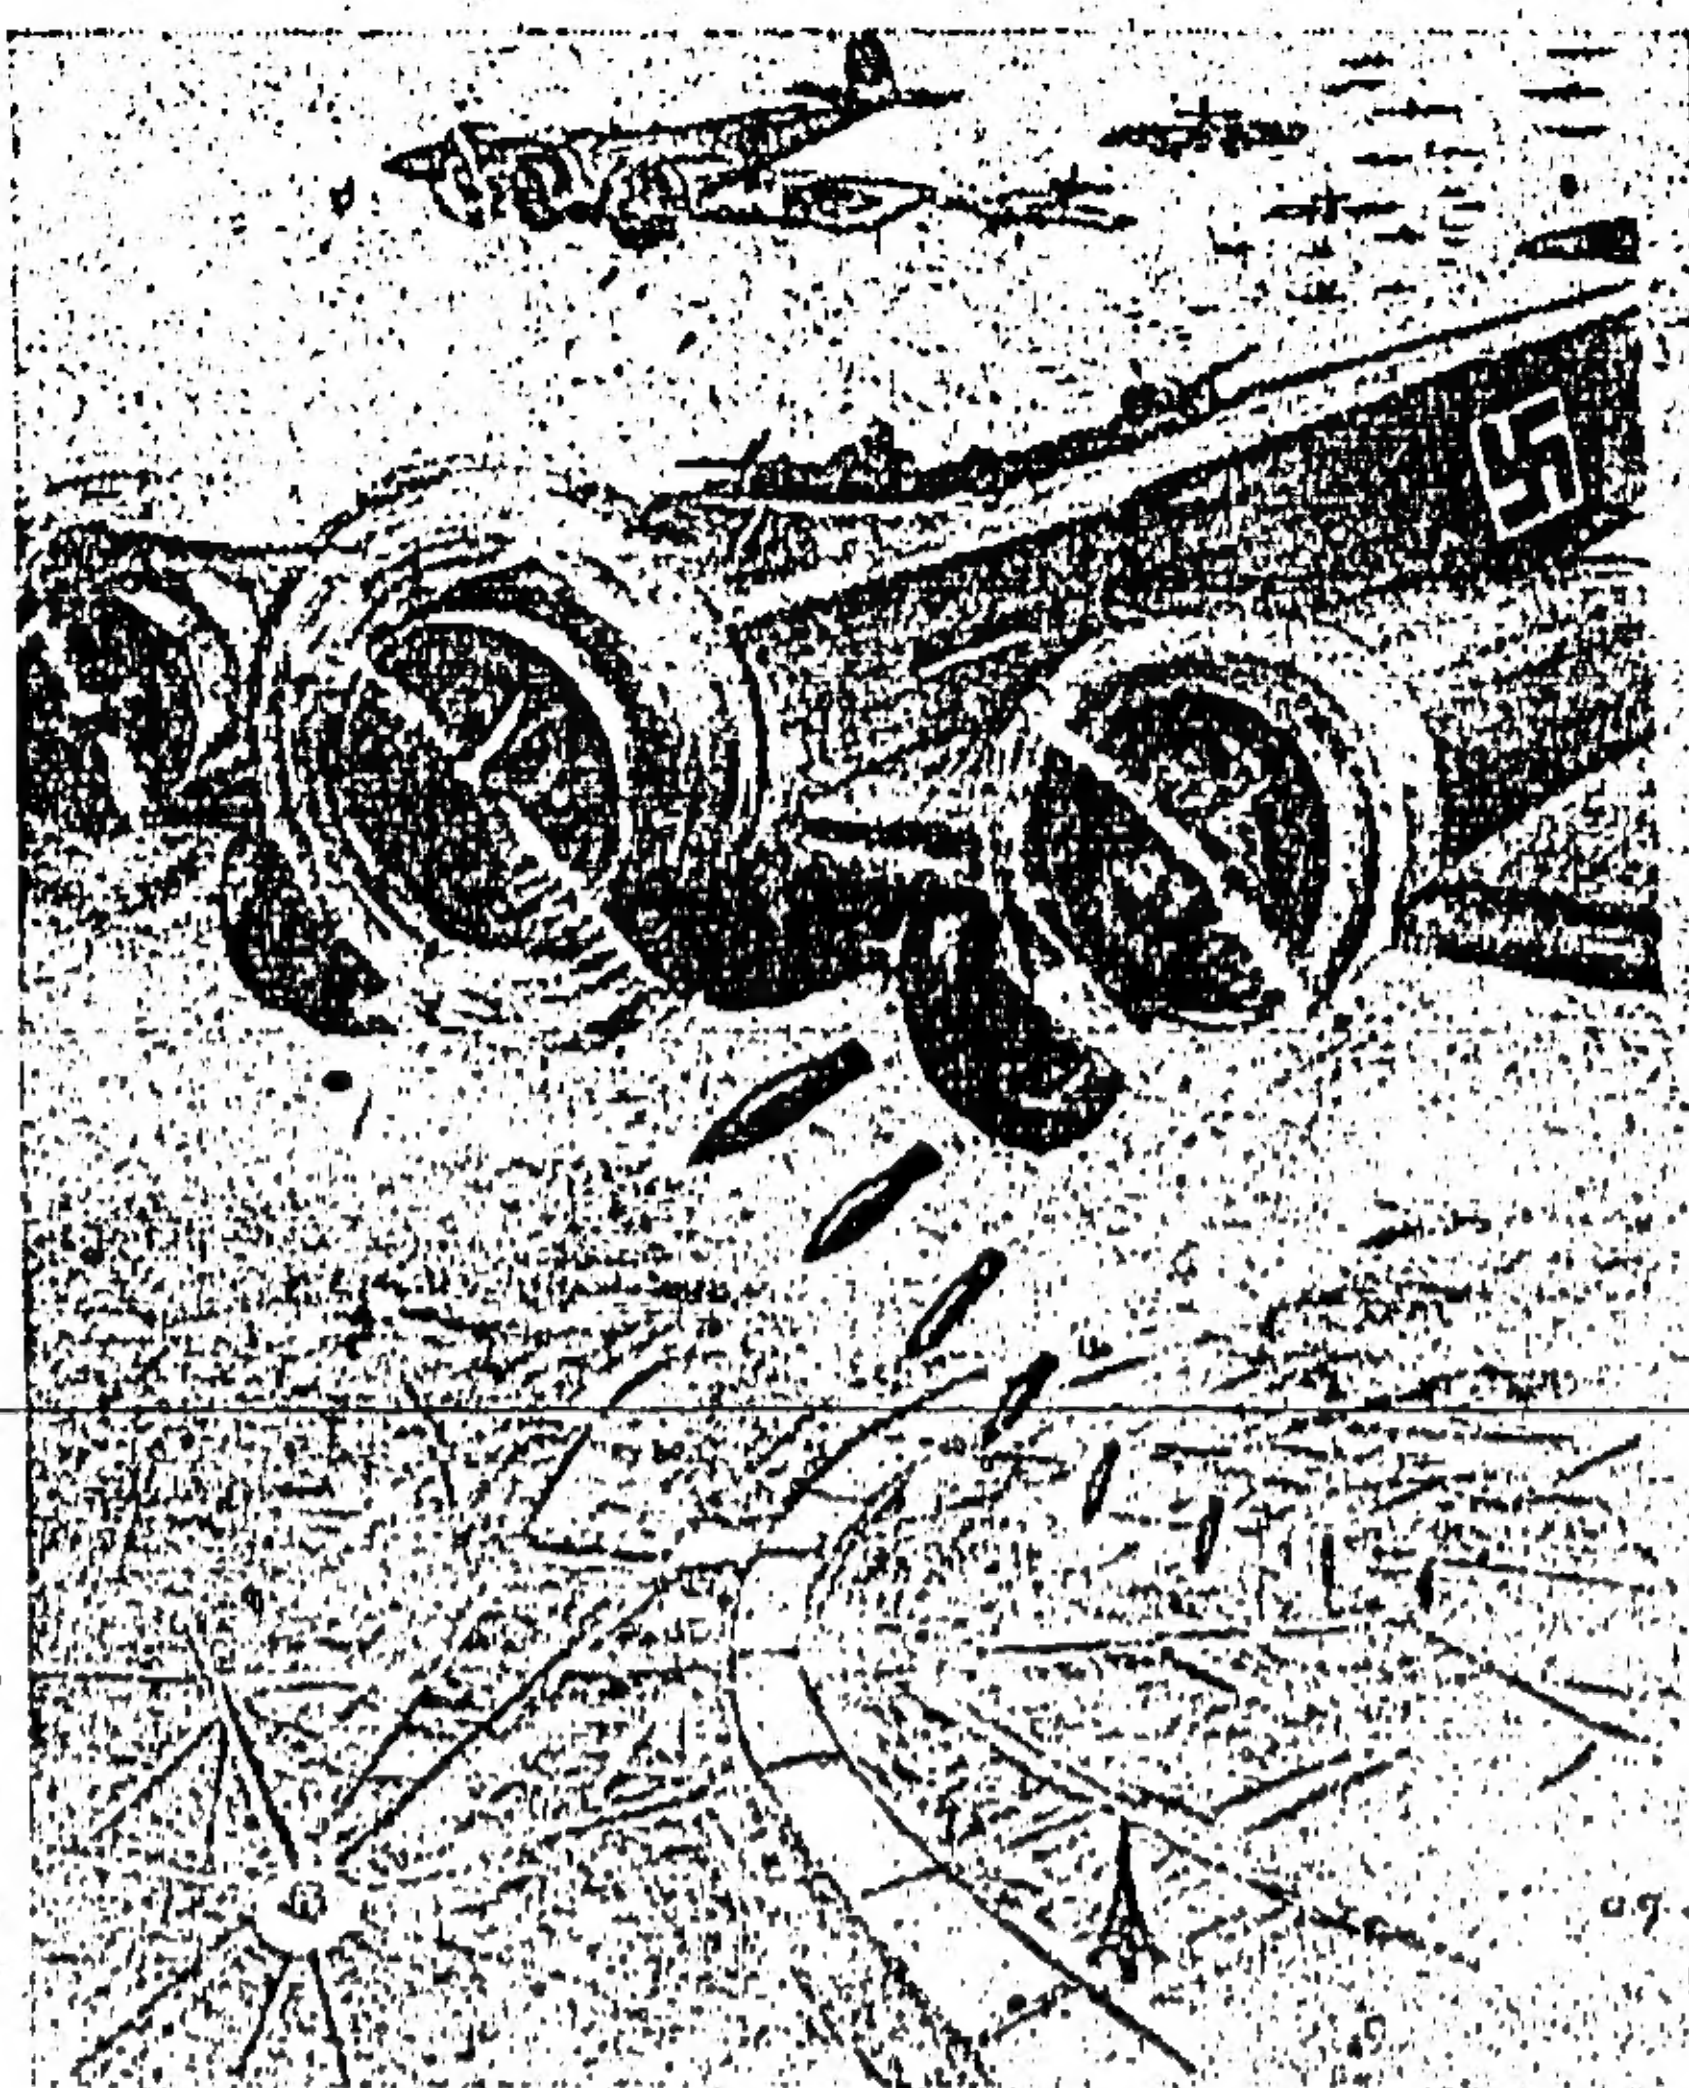

Because of this fear the Russians have created a standing army of 1,300,000 men and are believed to be capable of mobilising 12,000,000 men. They have built up a very strong air force, which, when speaking in the Chamber in Paris in February last, was described by the French Air Minister, Pierre Cot, as the strongest in Europe, comprising 3,000 first-line machines. The Red armies are heavily mechanised. No doubt much of this armament expansion by the Soviet Government is with the object of safeguarding the eastern Siberian territories from an anticipated Japanese attack; but the Germans believe it is directed against them.

THERE is another reason for the German rearmament. The disarmament clauses of the treaty of peace enforced on Germany by the victorious allies in 1918 have been represented to the German people as a humiliation and a badge of inferiority. The very fact that Germany was not allowed to have warships above the modest tonnage of 10,000, or heavy artillery, or tanks, or war airplanes, was a reason for desiring these things as a symbol of equal sovereignty.

Almost the last of the penal clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, the demilitarised zone along the Rhine, has now been violently swept away by one of Hitler's coups de theatre. Only the non-possession of colonies remains as a sign of the final defeat of the German armies in the great war. This German rearmament has alarmed all her neighbours, and they, in their turn, are building up their defences; for it has been coupled with an extreme Nationalist propaganda advocating the incorporation of all German-speaking peoples within the Reich.

This racial doctrine, which is as fundamental to the National Socialist creed as is opposition to Communism, would, if carried out, mean the absorption, or re-absorption, of the German-speaking inhabitants of Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark, Luxembourg, Lorraine and Switzerland. Some of the protagonists of this racial doctrine include the Dutch and Flemings of Belgium within this hoped-for great German system.

VOILA CE QUI NOUS ATTEND

ARRIVE AU POUVOIR!

This is the type of scare propaganda, used in the recent French general elections, that helps cause the mad armaments race that grips Europe.

The apologists of the National Socialist regime declare that the effort is to be only cultural; that any Nationalist penetration would be political and not by force of arms. Yet Germany's neighbours believe that this racial desire can only be consummated by force of arms, which would mean a general European war.

NOW it may be asked: Is there not a preventative value in the League of Nations and the system of collective security embodied in the Covenant? It is true that the whole of the nations of Europe, with the exception of Germany, are members of the League. Until the Ethiopian adventure the Italians were prepared to play their part in the League also. When, two years ago, there was a serious threat by rearmament Germany to Austria, the Italians were prepared to resist any incursion into Austria by the Germans by force of arms, and they also expected assistance from other states members of the League.

In theory, the collective system should preserve the peace of Europe, entailing only a moderate military expenditure by the parties in the system.

Thus, take the particular case of a renewal of the peace by Germany. It is known at the present time that the German army is by no means ready for war. In March, 1935, Herr Hitler decided to face the signatory powers of the Treaty of Versailles with the full force of the re-professional army leaders in Germany were opposed, on military grounds, to the step being taken at that time and in such a sudden way. To increase the Reichswehr from a nominal strength of 100,000 men into an army, raised by conscription, of 600,000 men, and to attempt to do it in 12 months, was bound to place a great strain on the existing army organisation. There has been much confusion as a result. An efficient army must have its proper proportion of officers and non-commissioned officers. There were not nearly enough of these professional soldiers available. Retired officers and sergeants, veterans of the last World War, were called to train the new recruits. It is generally accepted that it will be at least two years before the enlarged German army will be capable of taking the field. It may be considerably longer before the equipment and organisation are available for a complete mobilisation.

Germany's neighbours, notably France, Poland, Belgium and Czechoslovakia, have large conscript armies completely equipped and organised and ready for mobilisation. Even after the German army has been reconstituted in full strength, if the collective system could be made effective, the existing military forces available would be, at any rate on paper, overwhelmingly stronger.

Why is it, then, that the British Government, in particular, is breaking away from all previous national traditions? Why this feverish programme for the expansion of our armaments, involving an expenditure over and above the considerable naval and military budgets of previous years of £240,000,000 to be used in the next three years?

The answer is that the efficacy of the collective system in practice is doubted. Its final test was in the fall of 1931, when the Japanese began their imperialist conquests in Manchuria and North China. According to the Covenant of the League of Nations, China could have looked for protection to the other states-members of the League. The Chinese Government did not appeal to the League of Nations, because it was told that sanctions against Japan would not be forthcoming.

I need not here enter into the reasons why sanctions were not applied to Japan, but the fact that they were not used, nor even an attempt made to use them, was the first serious setback to the League of Nations itself. This had a profound, though largely unvoiced, effect on public opinion everywhere.

Then came the Italian aggression against Ethiopia. It was known for months beforehand that Signor Mussolini was determined to embark on an imperialist war of conquest. Yet no serious preparations were made by the other members of the League to prevent hostilities. When the Italian armies actually invaded Ethiopian territory the Council of the League acted with commendable rapidity and firmness, but only in a limited direction.

If full economic sanctions have not been applied against Italy, the doubters naturally ask what chance would there be of complete economic sanctions being applied to Germany, whose foreign trade is far more important? And if the advocates of collective security cannot even guarantee that full economic sanctions would be applied to Germany in case of aggression, how much less can they be sure of the far greater sacrifice of military sanctions being undertaken?

There has been, therefore, a loss of faith in the collective system through the League of Nations, and it is reflected in the armament programmes now in hand.

If the will to war exists, wars can be waged with light or primitive armaments, as all history shows; but it is also a fact that great armaments create a war mentality. The swift and terror of the new air weapon is a very real cause of war fears and war mentalities.

The airmen themselves believe that with the increasing ceiling and speed of the bombing airplane there is no real defence against it. The advocates of disarmament have carried on an intensive campaign for years describing the horrors of aerial warfare. The common people in the countries concerned are, therefore, inclined to support their governments in the hope of creating air forces of such strength as to terrorise their neighbours into keeping the peace.

Yet the air weapon would be the means of enforcing peace if only some effective system of collective security, in which the peoples believed, could be created.

If the general peace survives the present Rhineland crisis, there will be almost a certainty of two or three years' breathing space, for the reasons explained.

Provided the necessary statesmanship is forthcoming, that breathing space can be used to create a real system of collective security in which Germany could play her full part.

SEVEN CHINA NAVIGATION CO. VESSELS TO BE LAID UP

Stagnation Caused By Smuggling Ramp in North

BRITISH STAFF RETRENCHMENT AS SEQUEL TO WITHDRAWAL

SHIPPING CIRCLES FEAR OTHER COMPANIES MAY SOON BE FORCED TO FOLLOW SUIT

"Telegraph" Special Correspondent

SETTING A PRECEDENT WHICH, IT IS FEARED IN SHIPPING QUARTERS, WILL BE SHORTLY FOLLOWED BY OTHER SHIPPING COMPANIES, THE CHINA NAVIGATION CO., LTD. HAS DECIDED TO IMMEDIATELY WITHDRAW SEVEN WELL-KNOWN VESSELS FROM SERVICE.

These vessels are the Luchow, Liangchow, Yingchow, Kangchow, Chekiang, Chengtu and Chungking.

They were all in service between Hongkong and northern ports. With the exception of the Chengtu, the whole of these steamers have already been tied up.

The Chengtu is at present en route to Shanghai. As soon as she arrives she, too, will be withdrawn from service.

I understand from an authoritative source that the sequel to this wholesale withdrawal of seven British ships from service on the China Coast will be a corresponding retrenchment of the British sea-going staff of the company in question. Approximately 40 officers and engineers, many with long experience on the China Coast, will be affected.

The official reason for the laying up of the seven vessels is stated to be the depressed freightage conditions existing on the China Coast.

This depression has been almost entirely brought about, I understand, by the terrific smuggling ramp now existing in the North and, to some extent, even in South China.

Millions of dollars worth of goods are smuggled each week into China through the so-called "autonomous" State of East Hopei.

These goods sent to China through legal channels, large quantities would be carried by coastal vessels.

With Tientsin, Chinwangtao, Paitai, Changli and Lushan as their bases, smugglers are literally pouring illicit goods into China.

It is stated that investigations in northern waters, and the northern ports, show that the Chinese preventive cruisers are not permitted to enter the three mile limit in certain areas.

Smuggling, in fact, is now worked on such an organised basis that it has become a business of terrifying proportions.

AT LOWEST EBB

Its effect upon the China Coast trade has been enormous, and I understand from a reliable source that at no time in the history of China has the seaborne trade been at such a low ebb.

It will be recalled that mention was made at the annual meeting of a shipping company last week to yet another phase of the smuggling ramp that is seriously affecting British shipping on the China coast.

British ships, on which smuggling activities are practically non-existent when compared with those taking place in North China, have been subjected to a disheartening series of prosecutions by the authorities engaged in anti-smuggling activities.

In many cases fines have been inflicted on even small seizures made at coastal ports, despite the fact that the shipping companies themselves are doing their utmost to stamp out the illegal system that is ruining their business.

It was stated at the meeting that unmanifested stray parcels left on board ships by passengers rendered the owners of the ship liable to a fine of $200, the mere fact that the unmanifested parcel had been found aboard being considered "by the Commissioner of Customs (China)

LEAGUE SANCTIONS

Hongkong Boycott Of Italian Goods Has Been Complete

OUR IMPORTS IN APRIL WERE LOWEST IN HISTORY OF TRADE BETWEEN THE TWO NATIONS

"Telegraph" Special Representative

THE WAR IS OVER IN ABYSSINIA BUT—

League of Nations' sanctions have drawn a silken noose around the throat of Italy's commerce. Each month the noose is drawn tighter and tighter. If the boycott is continued, there can be only one outcome.

Hongkong is playing an important part in this boycott of a great nation.

This Colony's efforts alone are infinitesimal compared with those of other and greater nations.

But there are dozens of Colonies, Dependencies and countries as small as Hongkong. The total effect of their combined boycott is staggering.

Hongkong was until the League of Nations imposed a boycott, one of Italy's good customers.

We purchased 1,200 per cent. more goods from Italy than we exported to her.

Few countries in the world have such an adverse trading balance.

But all that is now wiped out.

To-day, Hongkong's trade with Italy has dropped to nothing. Sanctions have lost Italy a valuable market that will be hard to recapture. Other nations have stepped into the breach.

During the first four months of last year, we purchased from Italy goods to the value of $767,545 and sold to her goods valued at exactly $17,000.

In March 1935, we imported the following goods from Italy:

Building Materials ($11,719), Acetic Acid ($2,000), Dyeing and Tanning Materials ($1,050), Thin and Bottled Vegetables ($470), Cheese ($452), Sausages ($373), Miscellaneous Foodstuffs ($190), Vermouth and Sparkling Wine ($1,310), Metals ($117), Printing Paper ($1,672), Other Paper ($3,438), Paperware ($723), Poplins ($4,000), Umbrella Cloths ($7,914), Cretinones ($91), Prints ($1,600), Blankets ($50,023), Artificial Silk Yarn, ($149,033), Hats ($1,887), Brads ($400), Embroidery and Lace ($2,295), Abrasives ($359), Ropa ($1,160), Tobaccoists' Sundries ($250).

Italy, during that month, was our biggest supplier of Umbrella Cloths ($7,914 as compared with Germany's $5,464, United Kingdom's $3,283 and Japan's $216).

Italian blankets were used almost exclusively in the Colony. Our imports from Italy totalling $60,023. Now the United Kingdom, Germany and Japan are supplying us with Italy's quota.

Similarly with Artificial Silk Yarns, Italy supplied practically all our wants. As against purchases of $12,147 worth from Japan and $3,158 from North China, we bought artificial silk yarn to the value of $149,033 from Italy. It represented our biggest individual purchases from her.

Italian hats and caps found a ready market in this Colony, the only other major supplier being the United Kingdom.

Strangely enough, Italy, regarded as the home of vermicelli and macaroni, rarely supplied any to Hongkong. As a matter of fact, items under this heading are one of Hongkong's chief exports. In March, 1935, we exported Vermicelli, Macaroni and Noodles to the value of $212,547, importing (chiefly from North China) similar items to the value of only $36,863.

Hongkong imports of Italian goods last month included Printing Papers valued at $800, Glassware valued at $14, and Haberdashery valued at $170.

The total imports were valued at $984, the lowest in the history of trade between Italy and this Colony.

Hongkong's principal trade with Italy has been in Piece Goods and Textiles.

The Hongkong Trade and Shipping Returns for March last year give a complete list of the purchases made by Hongkong during that month. They may be taken as being fairly indicative of the normal trade between this Colony and Italy.

In March 1935, we imported the following goods from Italy:

FILIPINO OLYMPIANS HERE: REFUSE TO FIGHT

TENNIS

PERRY REACHES FINAL

And Will Meet Von Cramm

FRENCH TITLE

Paris, May 31.
Frederick J. Perry, Britain's premier lawn tennis player, and Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, Germany's leading ace, to-day qualified for the final of the French-national tennis championship, and will thus repeat last year's meeting when Perry won over four sets.

Perry dropped a set to Christian Boutsus of France in the semi-final to-day and was taken to 42 games before winning. Von Cramm enjoyed an easy passage against Marcel Bernard who entered the semi-final as a result of receiving a walk-over from H. W. Austin, winning in three sets with the loss of seven games.

According to Reuter the results were: Perry beat Boutsus 6-4, 7-5, 5-7, 6-2, and Von Cramm beat Bernard 7-5, 6-1, 6-1.

Von Cramm has won the French title once before. In 1934 he defeated Jack Crawford (holder) in the final 5-4, 7-9, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2. Last year Perry won the championship for the first time in his career, defeating the holder. It is interesting to note that not since 1914 has the title ever been held by the same player two years in succession. From 1923 to 1930 inclusive Lacoste and Cochet won in alternate years. Cochet being the last Frenchman to hold the crown in 1932.

KENT PILE ON RUNS

BUT RAIN RUINS CRICKET

LATEST SCORES

London, May 30.
Rain throughout the country caused serious interruptions to the County Cricket Championship matches which were down for decision. In two of the games there was no play whatever during the course of the day.

Yorkshire had Lancashire at Leeds but it was not possible to start, while the fixture between Derbyshire and Essex was also left until Monday without a ball being bowled.

Kent, however, had better weather and rattled up a total of 450 runs for five wickets against Hampshire. The hero of the match was Fagg who hit 223 runs before being forced to retire hurt. He was ably assisted by the evergreen Woolley who made 101 runs.

The All India tourists had Cambridge University as their opponents but rain prevented much play.

The closing scores follow:
All India: 37 for four wickets against Cambridge University.
Sussex: 185, Middlesex 21 for no wicket.

Somerset: 329, Gloucestershire 81 for no wicket.
Kent: 450 for five wickets (Woolley 101, Fagg 223 retired hurt) against Hampshire.

SEEK WIGHTMAN CUP HONOURS

Confident American Squad To Meet English Girls

New York, June 1.
An all-veteran squad, headed by Helen Jacobs, will seek to give America its sixth victory in the Wightman Cup matches at Wimbledon in June against England's best women stars.

The team, announced recently by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, did not include Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of San Francisco. A loophole was provided, however, to put the one-time queen of world courts on the team if she decides to compete later this summer.

The squad which will meet the British women June 12-15 follows: Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, Cal.

Holed in One—for Six

Found in the rain-water pipe of Yorkshire's cricket pavilion at Sheffield, a ball has been returned to its makers, Messrs. John Wilsden, for inclusion in the firm's museum.

It was lost last season in the course of an historic over when the late H. B. Cameron, the South African batsman, hit Verity for three fours and three sixes.

Cameron died soon after his return to South Africa. At the end of the over, Wood, Yorkshire's wicket-keeper, is said to have told Verity: "Don't worry, you have him in two minds—he doesn't know whether to hit you for four or six."

Oxford University: 192 for three wickets against the Free Foresters. Sir Julien Cahn's XI: 277 (Maxwell 94), Glamorgan 52 for four wickets.

Notts: 49 for four wickets against Surrey.
Northamptonshire: 49 for one wicket against Leicestershire.
Warwick: 10 for no wicket against Worcestershire.—Reuter.

CORRESPONDENCE

Hongkong Japanese Baseball Team

Sir,—I should be grateful for the use of a small space in your valuable paper in order to point out to your readers that the so-called Japanese Baseball Team now in the league is merely a team formed only by the members of the Japanese Young Men's Association and is not representative of the entire Japanese Community in the Colony.

In view thereof, as a Japanese Baseball fan, I shall greatly appreciate if your paper will hereafter designate the above team as the Japanese Young Men's Association (J.Y.M.A.) baseball team.

Enclosing my card,

BRILLIANT BOXING BY TARLETON

King Humbled in Bid for Second Championship

(By Fred Dartnell)

Nel Tarleton, the featherweight champion of England, showed up in no uncertain manner at the Anfield Road ground, Liverpool, last night, the high-down aspirations of Johnny King, the bantam-weight champion, to gain a title at the higher weight.

They say that Liverpool is the graveyard of boxing champions, and Tarleton overcame this evil tradition with as fine a display of scientific boxing as I have ever seen.

Tarleton was a pound heavier than his challenger, and for round after round his splendid boxing made King look quite second rate.

King's early confidence soon diminished. He kept running into a left hand that was well high perfect in its execution. Right-hand swings to the stomach caused King much concern, too.

NO BOXING TO-NIGHT

May Affect Amateur Status

That they could not risk their amateur status by boxing with believed professionals was the decision reached by the Filipino World Olympic fistic representatives upon arrival in Hongkong this morning. In consequence it was stated, though no official confirmation could be obtained, that this evening's boxing exhibitions between the visitors and Hongkong luminaries, would not take place.

Dr. Ylanan, head of the Olympic delegation would neither deny nor confirm the report when seen on the President Taft, but the boxers themselves, in an interview, insisted that the fights would be cancelled.

It was said that the visitors would be required to fight under professional rules, but this Mr. J. R. Shrivley, hon. secretary of the Hongkong Boxing Association denied. The contests, he said, would be under A.B.A. rules. He himself knew nothing whatever about the possibility of the programme being cancelled. Actually the function was not arranged by the I.H.C.A., but by some of its members in an unofficial capacity.

According to the programme arranged well known local and Far East boxers such as "Iron" Bux, Jr., "Boy" Walsh, "Battling" Gutz (Spain), J. Fisher, Pte. Bennett, "Sky" Lee, prominent Chinese pugilist, "Battling" Rio of Portugal and McBeattie of Scotland were to appear against the Olympic squad.

But the visitors are apparently doubtful concerning the amateur status of some of these men and this caused them to cancel the event.

FINAL DECISION IS "NO"

After a lengthy conference this morning with the local promoters of to-night's proposed exhibition of boxing, Dr. R. R. Ylanan, head of the Filipino World Olympic delegation announced that he would not permit his men to take part in the programme and it has therefore been cancelled.

Dr. Ylanan feels that the Olympic boxers' amateur status would be jeopardised. He complained that the local men were fighting under assumed names and that the charges being made were not going back into the funds of an Association.

CORRESPONDENCE

Concerning Mrs. McCaw's Status

The Sports Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.

Sir,—Without wishing to prolong the discussion over the recent tennis matches let me say here and now that I can vouch for the fact that Mrs. McCaw does not care two hoots whether she plays A or B grade, in fact, she favours B. And she also endorses the maxim that youth must have its chance. It is all for the good of the game.

But I think it is only fair that the critic be willing to be criticised. When "Veritas" used the phrase "Mrs. McCaw, who for several years has been a prominent K.C.C. player, without ever reaching the forefront, will receive her chance of making good," he overlooked the following facts, or did not know them!

Mrs. McCaw, with Tom Lay was mixed doubles champion of the K.C.C. for, I think, three years at over 30-40, champion singles player of the Bowling Green for two years, runner-up in the mixed doubles championship of the Colony twice, runner-up in the ladies doubles championship of the Colony once, and played for the K.C.C. and the I.H.C. when those clubs won the league. And she was asked if she could make the trip to Shanghai for Hongkong in the Interport (if selected).

If that spells anything, but "forefront," then "Veritas" and I use different dictionaries.

But by all means give the youngsters their chance says Mac: She thanks "Satire" for his good opinion of her play.

Yours etc,
J.M.

OLYMPIC DELEGATION ARRIVES

Hope To Do Well In Berlin

(By Our Special Correspondent)

Every member of the Filipino Olympic team was well upon arrival here from Manila aboard the President Taft this morning. Simeon C. Toribio, Captain of the field and track team and high jumper, has been suffering from dengue fever during the trip, however.

Dr. Antonio G. Sison, head of the delegation, was enthusiastic over the prospects of his team having a successful trip. "So far all the team, which comprises 25 athletes, are well physically and I expect that later when the climatic conditions are better they will improve on their records. But one can't predict chances; one thing I am sure of and that is that our boys will give of their best, and a very good account of themselves."

This is the first occasion on which a really big delegation has gone from the Philippines and the first time that the Commonwealth has sent a team overseas to an Olympic Games. The Assembly was helpful in this regard and has helped us financially to enable us to do it.

FRACTION OFF WORLD RECORDS

"Some of the members made records in the Philippines which are a fraction off world records. I cannot predict what will happen when they are pitted against the world's best, however. Many of the students are from the universities of the Philippines and a number of them are graduates of various universities, one of them of an American University."

"We are not sending the athletes to merely win," concluded Dr. Sison, "our purpose is especially to make contact with other nations and develop a friendly attitude to other peoples. Our boys will also have an opportunity to participate in the general spirit of sportsmanship which will be displayed at the Games."

Dr. Sison is Prof. of Medicine at the University of P.I. President of the Board of Athletic Management of the University of the P.I., Chairman of the Medical Division of the National Research Council of the Philippines, and will attend the International Congress for Crippled Children and the Anti-tuberculosis Congress which will be held in London in July.

BIG SWEEP ON LAST RACE TODAY

LAST PRIZE TOPS $20,000

MY SELECTIONS

(By "Captain Foster")

The Hongkong Jockey Club will close the first half of their racing season this afternoon with a special $1 Cash Sweep, which will be drawn on the last event, the Lantau Handicap for "D" class China Ponies, and the first prize will be over $20,000.

The first day of the Whitsun Carnival was held under ideal weather conditions, there being a nice breeze coming across the Valley, and a better attendance after the third event.

Close finishes were the order of the day, the best race being the Lead Mine Handicap for D class China Ponies when over half-a-dozen steeds passed the wire like a cavalry charge. Three events were annexed by a short head and two came under the category of "a head," while "a length" was given to the second leg of the Daily Double.

By steering Soldier of Britain and Hammer to victory, Mr. Raymond Pih has consolidated his position as the leading jockey for the first half while Messrs. Black and Delt have each added a win to their scores. Mr. S. Y. Liang was in great form to pilot two successive winners and it may interest to know that he has now seven races to his credit. Mr. W. H. Choy cut the ice by registering his first success of the season on Ocean View and he requires one more to emerge from the novice class.

Mr. Li Lan Sang, owner of the "Views," was lucky enough to annex three races, Harvest View managing to accomplish the "hat trick" by a short head.

Mr. Dumb's Diana Bay will have no difficulty in winning the main event this afternoon and I fully expect Double Finesse, Centre Court and Flybynight to make amends. There are ten races down for today and my selections are as follows:

INTER-CLUB TENNIS AND BADMINTON

MACAO VISITORS WELL BEATEN

BY THE RECREIO

The Macao tennis visitors did not improve in their men's doubles matches with the Club de Recreio yesterday afternoon, their "A" and "B" teams going down to decisive defeats. The Recreio clinched all the matches. The matches were played on the League principle, but unlike the mixed doubles games of the previous afternoon, were decided on the best of three sets.

The results of the meeting between the "A" teams were as follows:
A. V. Remedios and J. J. Goncalves (Recreio) beat C. da Silva and H. W. Bradley 6-1, 6-3; beat de S. Fernandes and A. J. da Silva 6-4, 6-2; beat J. H. de Mello and A. Boyal 6-1, 7-5.

F. J. Remedios and H. A. Barros (Recreio) beat A. H. de Mello and Boyal 6-3, 6-4; beat da Silva and Bradley 6-2, 6-1; beat Fernandes and Silva 6-0, 6-2.

A. V. Remedios and C. A. Barreto (Recreio) beat Fernandes and Silva 6-7, 6-3; beat de Mello and Boyal 6-2, 6-3; beat da Silva and Bradley 6-1, 6-4.

The Club de Recreio "B" team also accounted for the Macao "B" team by nine matches to nil. Scores:
J. J. Remedios and L. F. V. Ribeiro (Recreio) beat L. A. de Mello and A. B. Pereira 6-0, 6-3; beat J. C. D'Almeida and C. Yuan 6-6, 6-4; beat H. Noronha and F. Ramalho 6-1, 6-4.

BADMINTON MATCHES

After the conclusion of the tennis, the visitors were pitted against a badminton team drawn from the Club de Recreio, which included three "B" Division League players. The Recreio won by five matches to two, two other games being abandoned owing to insufficient time. The scores were as follows:

L. A. L. Silva and E. A. R. Alves (Recreio) beat E. Silva and J. Nolasco 24-23; beat H. Noronha and A. Boyal 21-17.

H. A. Barros and A. E. Xavier (Recreio) beat P. Angelo and J. Boyal 21-15; lost to E. Silva and J. Nolasco 10-21.

Too Many Golf Clubs "a Sign of Weakness"

The movement set on foot at St. Andrews, the headquarters of golf, to limit the number of clubs carried by golfers in championship matches, is supported by some of the leading professionals.

Although most of them derive part of their income from the sale of clubs, they are frankly derisive of those players who turn up at the first tee with 20 or 30 clubs in their bags.

Caddies, of course, are wholeheartedly in favour of the reform.

Alex. Herd said to the Evening Standard "I think limitation is a very good idea. If I had my way I should not allow more than ten clubs. If you cannot play golf with that number you cannot play with 20."

"All that are really necessary are a driver, a brassie or spoon, irons Nos. 2 and 4, two mashies, a mashie-niblick, niblick and putter. I have often asked caddies about these people who carry large numbers, and I find they never use half of them. More than ten clubs takes all the science out of the game."

Archie Compston said: "Too many clubs are a sign of weakness, although, perhaps, I should not say so, as it is bad for business. Personally I use 11—two wooden clubs, and irons numbered 1 to 9."

"St. St. Andrews in 1933 Olin Dutra, the American, had 25 irons in his bag. He had to spend his time hunting round for his No. 12 or No. 19, and he could not get a St. Andrews caddy to carry for him. Another competitor had nine wooden clubs."

In W. G. Oke's opinion the minimum number is six.

"If you are going to make golf a matter of pure skill instead of swinging every club the same way and letting it do the work, then six is the absolute minimum," he said. "These are the putter, mashie, niblick, iron, driver and spoon. My bag consists of 14, but that includes one or two reserves—a spare driver, for instance—and two niblicks, one heavier than the other."

After the badminton, the visiting players were the guests of the Club at a dinner, presided over by Mr. F. H. Barne, president of the club, at which complimentary speeches were made.

JAPAN AND NEXT OLYMPIAD

Will Receive Strong Support

San Francisco. Selection of Tokyo as the site for the 1940 World Olympic Games will meet with his "strong support," Count Henri Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic Committee, told reporters following his return from Japan.

The noted Belgian sportsman personally surveyed the projected site for three weeks and described it as comparable to any of the finest locations in Europe and the United States.

"The final selection, of course, is up to the committee," Count Latour said. "If the decision is made to hold the games there, it will meet with my strong support."

He expressed strong belief that the Japanese bid would be accepted. Selection of Tokyo as the locale for the international competitions would mark the first time the tournament has been held in the Far East.

INTERNATIONAL GOODWILL

Latour spoke highly of Japanese sports enthusiasm. He said officials in Tokyo had assured him a stadium seating 100,000 would be built in the heart of the city.

The count, who embodies the true ideal of Olympic sportsmanship, declared selection of Tokyo as the 1940 site would contribute immeasurably to the advancement of international goodwill.

While tremendously enthusiastic about sports, Latour noted, the Japanese never allow athletics to interfere with their studies. He said Japanese schoolboys shunned sports during school hours, but took advantage of every spare moment, in and out of classes, to train.

Latour said he would make a favourable report to the international committee on Japan's application.

The committee is to meet in Berlin this summer during the staging of the XIIth World Olympic competitions there.

Latour did not discuss the possibility that China would refuse to participate in the 1940 Olympics if Tokyo is selected as the site for the games. However, China hitherto has been one of the smallest entrants in the competitions.

BOXING INVASION OF AMERICA

FOREIGNERS FLOCK

TO TAKE PART IN NEW BOOM

New York, May 31. The United States is witnessing an unprecedented invasion by foreign boxers, lured here by the current boom in the prize-fighting industry. "And they're still coming," commented Jimmy Bronson, one of the busiest importers of foreign boxing talent. "Almost every boat brings in a few more fighters."

Bronson said he believed the ring renaissance, stimulated by the hard-hitting "uncrowned champion" Joe Louis, is responsible for it. "We should have one of the most prosperous summers in boxing history," Bronson predicted, "and the best of foreign fighting material is flocking over to share in the prosperity."

Max Schmelling leads the invading pack. His fight with Joe Louis June 18th should be the turning point in his career. If he is successful, there is little doubt that he will get a chance at the heavyweight title held by the aging Jimmy Braddock. However, a defeat may force him into retirement from the heavyweight picture.

One of the most successful invaders is Pedro Montanez, the Puerto Rican lightweight who has come through fourteen fights in the United States without a loss. His latest victim was Aldo Spoldi, Italy's hope in the lightweight division. Spoldi, although defeated by Montanez, gave the little Puerto Rican the toughest fight of the fourteen the latter has faced.

The latest arrival is Baltasar Sangchili, Spain's claimant to the bantamweight crown. The dark-haired Castilian was detained on a technical charge at Ellis Island by the immigration authorities, the first foreign fighter to have any difficulty entering the country.

Jack McAvoy, who had enjoyed a successful trip to the United States until he met the light-heavyweight champion, John Henry Lewis, may possibly try another chance for fame on these shores. McAvoy defeated the middleweight champion, Babe Risio, but Risio refused to risk his title in the fight with the Englishman. A title bout may possibly be arranged later on.

Among the other foreign fighters of great and near-great calibre are: Andre Leone of France, Hans Kohnhaus, Joe Besselmann and Gustave Eder of Germany, Cleto Locatelli of Italy, and Davey Crowley, Norman Snow, and Davey Fine of England in addition to a flock of lesser fighters from all over Europe, South America, the Philippines and Mexico.—United Press.

Summer CAN'T LAST for Ever

... even in Kashmir, Garden of India. But this romantic story tells of the Summer of Love, which can last for ever!

—By MARGARET FERGUSON

CHAPTER FIVE.

Was it possible that by just pretending one had it, taking on oneself an imaginary personality, one could really change one's whole self and become another person? Phillida Petrie, the secretary, she hadn't thought of her for days. She was Phillida, the mystery dancer, the glamorous footlight personality,
whose body was light and graceful
as a feather. Two hundred and fifty pounds, and a little courage had created her, and there was no use
in thinking of the future now.
She went from hour to hour, each hour full of blissful happiness, and Christy Maradick. If she had not had a few weeks ago, he wouldn't have noticed her existence; she would have been just a quiet, dowdy,
ordinary business girl, but Phillida,
the dancer, had the power to attract
and hold a man's attention.

So when, a week later, Christy brought a copy of an English weekly alone one of their picnic tea, and casually read out a certain paragraph to her, she sat silent, smiling mysteriously.

The paragraph, out of the gossip
page, said:

"Went to a small farewell party
given to speed Petrovna on her voyage out East. We shall miss her exquisite dancing from the ballet this season, but she is badly in need of rest and change, and is setting out for an unknown destination somewhere
in India to find it."

Christy lowered the paper and looked across it at Phillida, bent forward with elaborate concern to look at it one time for tea, Christy? Are we going to bathe first?"

She looked up and met his eyes,
with a twinkle of mischief in her own, and then quick as an arrow she was on her feet, coughing and flourishing a towel round her head
in a mock dance.

"Come on—and don't be so inquisitive. I am Phillida... that's enough for anyone to know—just now. Hurry up."

So she wasn't getting any more sensible, though time was flying.
And so was her, bank balance.
Summer couldn't last for ever, nor could two hundred and fifty pounds and a fairy tale. But she wouldn't take a peep at the end of it yet.

Next morning she found a note
lying on her breakfast plate, addressed in a strange hand, which she opened with a puzzled frown. It wasn't Christy's writing, and she didn't know another soul in the place.
"Dear Phillida" (she read).

U.S. REPUBLICANS

HOOVER TO ADDRESS ANNUAL CONVENTION

Palo Alto, May 30.
Mr. Herbert Hoover, former President, told the United Press to-day that he had accepted the invitation of Mr. Henry P. Fletcher, Chairman of the Republican party, to attend the Cleveland Convention.
Meanwhile, his associates are interested in Washington dispatches stating that Mr. John Hamilton, campaign manager for Governor London, has suggested that Mr. Hoover be asked to address the convention.
Governor London has announced that Mr. Hamilton will make his nomination speech despite reports that eastern Conservative Republicans have tried to persuade United Press.

Committee Warning

Washington, May 30.
The Bell Committee, investigating the activities of the Old Age Revolving Pensioners Limited sponsored by Dr. F. E. Townsend, resumed its hearings to-day and warned recalcitrant witnesses that they will "get a dose of the same medicine" as was meted out to Dr. Townsend if they refuse to testify—United Press.
Dr. Townsend and other members of the O.A.R.P. directorate have been called for contempt for refusing to testify before the House Committee.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed Feeling You Could Push a Bus Over
The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels each day. If it is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest.
It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You are constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour,
sunk and the world looks pink.
Bile, fatty acids, palatable laxative and harsh purgatives are "make-shifts." A more laxative movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes the famous, sure acting Carter's Little Liver Bile to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Bile. Look for the name Carter's on the red package.

"Will you forgive my writing to you like this to ask a very great favour of you? I am getting up a big charity entertainment in aid of the recent earthquake victims in India,
and Captain Maradick is helping me.
If you could be persuaded to help us
—do—no, little dance for us—it would be the sensation of the evening and make the show a magnificent success. Would it be asking too much of you? I promise you won't be worried again by anything else,
and that it shall be arranged exactly as you wish. We needn't even give your name on the programme, only please—please say you will—Yours
very sincerely, RACHEL BAN-NISTER."

Lady Bannister, the Resident's wife, and Christy was helping her organise this affair—had hinted to her that "Phillida" might be persuaded to make the evening a sensation!
Well, it served her right—being found out had to come sooner or later... or had it?

Could she risk it?
She had gone so far, got herself so involved in pretence that she might as well go on now. She had no little time left anyway, why not make the most of it?

She sat down and wrote a short note to Lady Bannister, saying she would be delighted to do anything
she could to help in making the charity entertainment a success, but would prefer to appear on the programme only as "Phillida."

Lady Bannister's reply was enthusiastically grateful, and close on its heels came Christy, very business-like with a sheet of notes for arrangements.

"I hope you didn't mind," she said.
"I'm afraid I let slip something that started Lady Bannister on the idea of asking you to dance for her show.
And then I felt you wouldn't refuse.
It won't make any difference to your privacy up here. I promise that, and so has she."

"Of course I don't mind," Phillida said, nervously lighting a cigarette.
"Anything I can do to help."
"It's grand of you. Now what about arranging it..."

The big club ballroom was packed tight on the night of the charity entertainment. Everyone came in their best, full of anticipation and generosity. There had been hints lying that this show was going to be rather different from the ordinary local amateur effort—that its organisers had something very special

up their sleeves.
People fluttered over their programmes excitedly, trying to spot the something special. Most of the names on it were familiar—but here was one that wasn't.

"Dance Macabre... Phillida," whoever was she?
Questions began to fly about what were unanswered, until somebody remembered having seen something about somebody... was it some famous ballet dancer?—who was travelling about India incognito.
Lady Bannister, who was entertaining a large dinner party, appeared from behind the scenes and took her seat in the middle of her guests. On her right sat a large, handsome man with grey flecked hair, who wore a monocle on the thick black ribbon round his neck.

"I hope you won't be too bored, Mr.
Serval. This sort of show isn't very entertaining for a person like you.
But I think there'll be one item that will come up to your standards!"
And Lady Bannister leant closer and whispered something.

Mr. Serval looked interested and screamed in his monocle lighter.
"Indeed! That will be a treat—
even for me!"

And the show began. The curtain went down over the players in a bright little sketch, there was a moment of applause, and then a sort of rush of expectancy settled over the crowded room.

The footlights changed from white
to dim blue, the curtain went up,
a soft note of music was struck on a piano—and a slight white figure stood poised with its back to the audience,
head thrown back, arms stretched out wide, tense and graceful.

The curtain fell to a thunder of applause, cheers of excitement, stamping feet. Behind it, Phillida stood with her hand pressed to her thudding heart, feeling slightly sick and giddy
and very limp suddenly.

She had carried off the dream of her life, of dancing before an audience
and holding them spellbound.
A warm hand grasped her cold
shoulder suddenly, and Christy's voice
said:

"That was lovely! Come and rest
now. You look tired and it must have been terribly hot dancing."
Behind the makeshift stage the little card-room had been turned into a waiting-room for the performers and there were sandwiches and cold drinks there, but Phillida couldn't eat anything, her mouth felt so dry. All she wanted was a long drink with ice in it, and Christy went in search of some.

HEIRESS'S MOTHER ON MAYHEM CHARGE

HEWITT CASE COMES BEFORE JURY

ANNE HEWITT
"I never had any boy friends."

21-YEAR-OLD GIRL ALLEGES SHE WAS TRICKED INTO OPERATION

San Francisco, June 1. Two prominent San Francisco physicians go on trial to-day charged with mayhem based on a complaint of 21-year-old Ann Cooper Hewitt, heiress to a $10,000,000 estate, that she was tricked into a sterilization operation by her mother, Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt McCarter.

Miss Cooper, whose father was the late Peter Cooper Hewitt, noted inventor, charged that Dr. Tilton B. Tillman and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd, performed the operation on her at the behest of her mother, whom she alleges sought to gain control of her inheritance. Her father's will provided that if she should die without children the entire estate should revert to her mother.

Mrs. McCarter, who also is charged with mayhem, also was to have gone on trial, but she has been confined to a hospital in Jersey City, New Jersey, with pneumonia which developed following her attempt at suicide by swallowing an overdose of sedative.

WOMAN REFUSES TO SIGN BALANCE-SHEET

CREATES "DEADLOCK" FOR FIRM

TO PAY £500 FOR LIBEL ON DIRECTOR

Damages of £500 were awarded at the County of London Sheriffs' Court this month to Mr. Foster English, of The Crescent, Hadley Wood.

Mr. English, who is a director of the Magnum Cabinet Co. Ltd., claimed damages for slander and libel from Mrs. Emma Florence Tichiaz, a fellow director, and widow of his former partner.

Mr. H. G. Leon, for Mr. English, said that Mrs. Tichiaz had indulged in a campaign against Mr. English to destroy the business.

When Mr. Tichiaz died in 1932 Mr. English suggested that Mrs. Tichiaz should take her husband's place on the Board. She became a director and received £8 a week in fees. In 1932 the dividend was 20 per cent. In 1933, when the certificate of accounts came to be passed, Mrs. Tichiaz refused to pass them and employed another firm of accountants to investigate them. They found nothing wrong.

She still refused to pass the accounts or attend a meeting, and a position of deadlock was reached. In 1935 Mr. English again pressed her to attend to the business.

She went to another firm of accountants, and they found everything all right. Still Mrs. Tichiaz was not satisfied, and asked them to do it again, and again the accountants said that everything was all right.

The company was unable to carry out its duties under the Companies Act because Mrs. Tichiaz would not attend a meeting or sign the balance-sheets.

Mr. English's solicitors wrote to her, and in reply one of the alleged libels occurred, the passage reading: "Mr. English has forged my signature, as can be proved."

Later Mrs. Tichiaz, with a woman friend, went to the offices of the company and, in the presence of the clerk there, said of Mr. English: "You have forged my signature and you will see what I am going to do."

Other statements she was alleged to have made were that Mr. English was a thief and that he had defrauded the income tax authorities.

Mr. English, in evidence, said there was not the slightest truth in the allegations.

Replying to the Under Sheriff, Mr. Charles Burchell, regarding his position under the Companies Act, Mr. English said that the return for 1935 had been filed with an endorsement. Somerset House were satisfied. "I have done my best to carry out my statutory obligations," he added.

Mr. Burchell said that the jury would not doubt think it scandalous that Mrs. Tichiaz had behaved in the way she had. English had done everything in his power to do the decent thing by her since her husband died.

homes and institutions in the United States. After overcoming great difficulties, including poverty, the Bentivoglio succeeded in founding convents at Omaha, New Orleans and Evansville, Indiana. The Poor Clares Order to-day has fifteen convents in the United States.

AMERICAN CATHOLIC SAINT

Vatican City, May 20. Proceedings to sanctify Mother Maria Maddalena Bentivoglio, founder of the Poor Clares Order in the United States, are progressing satisfactorily, it was learned at the office of the Sacred Congregation of Rites here to-day.

Efforts to make Mother Bentivoglio a saint commenced in 1929 in the diocese of Indianapolis and were successfully terminated towards the end of 1932. The findings of the diocesan process were forwarded to Rome and on November 8, 1935, the Congregation of Rites inaugurated proceedings to investigate whether Mother Bentivoglio had "lived and died in the odour of sanctity."

The road to sainthood in the Roman Catholic Church is a lengthy and exhaustive journey. Mother Bentivoglio, beloved and venerated by thousands of Catholics, especially in Nebraska, Louisiana and Indiana where she founded convents, is slowly but surely nearing beatification, the first important milestone toward canonization.

When proceedings for elevation to the honours of the altar have reached that point, the subsequent and final goal, canonisation, is usually but two years away.

Efforts to make Mother Bentivoglio a saint commenced in 1929 in the diocese of Indianapolis and were successfully terminated towards the end of 1932. The findings of the diocesan process were forwarded to Rome and on November 8, 1935, the Congregation of Rites inaugurated proceedings to investigate whether Mother Bentivoglio had "lived and died in the odour of sanctity."

Two theological revisers were appointed to examine the findings of the diocesan process. The revisers are still busy studying the case. As soon as they complete their investigation, the 30 counsellors comprising the Congregation of Rites will be assembled to pass judgment.

It is impossible for the church to make the formal presentation of Mother Bentivoglio's case for beatification and canonization until the counsellors have pronounced themselves. Church officials with whom the United Press talked, felt certain that there will be no sudden developments to the contrary since "everything is progressing very well indeed."

Postulant of Mother Bentivoglio's case is Father Antonio Santarelli of the Order of Saint Francis of Assisi. Cardinal Carlo Raffaele Rossi has been appointed relator of the case by the Congregation of Rites.

Adoration for Mother Bentivoglio is not limited exclusively to the United States. An army of admirers are to be found right here in the Eternal City, for Mother Bentivoglio was born in Rome in 1834 in the severs, artistically famed Fiano Palace. The palace is opposite the church of San Lorenzo in Lucina in the very heart of the city. She was born a noblewoman, Countess Annetta Bentivoglio. She entered the Poor Clares Order in 1854. Her sister Costanza was already in the order.

In 1875, Sisters Maria Maddalena and Costanza were chosen by Pope Pius IX to establish Poor Clares
